

RALPH MCGILL

Mr. Butler Touches a Nerve

Marse Henry Watterson, for a generation editor of the Courier-Journal, was once rebuked by a Louisville Democrat for being critical of the party. Mr. Watterson answered him with a couplet:

"Things have come to a hell of a pass
When a man can't flog his own jackass."

National Chairman Paul Butler, who for some time has been flogging the Democratic mule with great vigor and enthusiasm, has set the Southern wing of the party bellowing epithets and renewed demands for resignation.

This is precisely what Mr. Butler wished. He planned it that way.

Reasonable Rule

Mr. Butler considers this a reasonable rule. He argues that if the party has a convention and nominates candidates for the presidency and vice presidency, then those who participate ought to pledge themselves to support the men so chosen. If they do not intend to do so, the chairman thinks they should not join in the business of determining the man who will run against either Richard M. Nixon or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

This is, the chairman believes, a reasonable and persuasive position which will appeal to the average person's sense of fair play. Indeed, it was this knowledge which caused him to make an issue of it, this far ahead of the Sept. 16 meeting. He wanted the Southern opposition to protest and denounce him so that the angry reaction will picture the Deep South Democrats as taking the unreasonable position that if they can't have things their way they will refuse to support the nominees.

Five Southern states have taken committee or legislative action to deprive the people of their states of the right to vote for the candidates nominated by the Democratic convention. The electors, whose names appear on the ballot, would not be committed to the candidate nominated by the party. They would be creatures of the state committee which could withhold them in an effort to throw the election into the House of Representatives or cast them for a possible third party nominee.

Election in House

There is no remote likelihood the election can be thrown into the House. But even if it should be, those behind such strategy would certainly not be able to elect a president who would meet their demands. A third party attempt is even less productive of hope. The realist, looking at the situation, cannot see where the bolters will be anything but worse off outside the party than in. But presently there is not much reliance on logic or reality.

Chairman Butler carefully refrains from any suggestion of inviting the Deep South Democrats out of the party. But he consistently urges, and he wishes to dramatize before the nation in the press and on television screens, that those who come to the convention agree to support its nominees. If they do not so intend, he believes they should not participate.

He privately has said that he believes the national sense of fair play will turn against those who come as party delegates and then quit the party and seek to defeat its nominees.

Paul Butler emphatically insists he is not anti-Southern. "I just believe," he said, "that if those Southern states which are not sincere about being part of the Democratic party don't intend to support the party's nominees, they should be honest enough not to come to the convention. This seems reasonable to me and I believe it will seem so to the average American. Those who are not for us ought to be honest enough to go their own way."

So believing, he pressed a nerve.

Navy Fires Polaris from Ship at Sea

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy's Polaris missile was fired for the first time Thursday from a ship at sea, marking a big step in its development as a nuclear punch for roving submarines.

The successful shot followed by a week a Moscow radio claim that Soviet submarines could enter Hudson Bay from under Arctic ice and bombard the industrial heart of America with ballistic missiles.

The launching of the 28-foot test version of the Polaris was one of the most spectacular ever seen here.

LEAPS 70 FEET

The USS Observation Island, a 563-foot converted transport ship, glided slowly through calm Atlantic waters about seven miles off the cape.

As the countdown reached zero, compressed air popped the Polaris out of a tube buried vertically in the deck of the ship. The missile leaped silently to a point 70 feet overhead and its first-stage engine ignited.

Spurting a tail of white smoke from its solid fuel, the Polaris curved high in the sky and sped down the Atlantic missile range to a watery target some 700 miles away. A bright flash of fire a minute after launch revealed ignition of the second stage.

'SIGNIFICANT MILESTONE'

Compression chambers similar to the one used Thursday will launch the Polaris from submarines. These chambers, similar to torpedo-launching tubes, will enable a built-in firing mechanism to trigger the first-stage engine above water.

The Navy announced the success of the shot an hour after launching.

Capt. Robert F. Sellers, commander of the naval ordnance test unit here, messaged Capt. Leslie Slack, commanding officer of the Observation Island: "Congratulations to you and your team on completion of a significant milestone."

The team included some 350 Navy crewmen of the ship and about 50 technicians from Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which builds the missile.

U.S. submarine specialists scoffed at the Soviet claim that its submarines could fire missiles.

Muggy 90s Stay But It's Been Hotter

It's hot, muggy and everywhere sort of uncomfortable adjective that you want to use. But it may be comforting to know that it's been hotter on an Aug. 27.

In 1943, the mercury hit a sizzling 100 on the same date. But Thursday wasn't that bad in Atlanta, where the high was 84 and the low 72.

It will stay that way for the next two days, the weatherman says, with a low of 72 and a high of 94 for Friday. For Saturday, he expects a slightly hotter 73 and 95.

It will stay rather humid, too, the Atlanta Weather Bureau said. The Discomfort Index registered an 83 high Thursday and is expected to remain pretty steady for the next few days with only a slight chance of an afternoon thundershower occurring on both days.

It's Back to School Today For 115,000 Atlanta Children

About 115,000 sun-kissed youngsters are expected to skip happily—or walk reluctantly—into Atlanta schools Friday morning in answer to the familiar summons of back-to-school bells.

Atlanta teachers and officials outwardly are aglow with the promise of a "best year ever"—even in the face of the grim possibility that those same back-to-school bells could very well not ring this time next year in the city's public schools.

Now under federal court orders to come up with a desegregation plan by Dec. 1, the Atlanta public school system may be embarking on its last year before a final showdown on integration—a show-

Gas Bomb Routs Little Rock Board

By PHIL NEWMAN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Three women threw a tear gas bomb into the building where the Little Rock School Board was meeting Thursday night.

The fumes of the bomb drifted upstairs to the second floor where the six members of the board and about 20 other persons were holding a routine meeting.

FLEE BUILDING

The thick, heavy gas caused board members, spectators and half a dozen reporters to stagger out of the building with tears streaming from their eyes.

Firemen called to the scene had to help them out the back of the building.

The fumes were so thick it was smarting to the eyes more than a half-block away.

A Negro janitor cleaning up on the first floor of the building said he saw the front door open and a woman shove the bomb into the building.

FELL DOWN

"The woman opened the door, shoved the bomb inside," the janitor, Leonard Willis, said. "It went off and as she turned to run, she fell down the steps, then stumbled into a car that roared away."

He said there were two other women in the car. Willis said that as the woman stumbled she lost her shoes. The shoes were turned over to police.

It was the first open violence connected with Little Rock schools since they opened integrated three weeks ago.

Youth Falls 300 Feet To Death in Cavern

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A 300-foot plunge inside a dark, watery cave on Lookout Mountain Thursday killed a novice explorer, Joseph J. Shadden Jr., 18, of Chattanooga.

He apparently died instantly, although he was not pronounced dead officially until his body was raised about two hours later.

Shadden had gone cave exploring with two companions, John Thompson, 16, and Eric Stuart, 15, both of Chattanooga.

Thompson said that Shadden had fashioned a rope into a sling seat and wrapped one end around a tree. Friction from the rope rubbing against rocks apparently caused it to break. Thompson said.

Shadden had been lowered only about 15 feet into the chasm when the rope parted and he fell into the ink darkness.

Thompson ran to Ruby Falls, a tourist attraction about a half-mile away, to give the alarm.

About 200 rescue workers and curiosity seekers gathered quickly.

Vance Dobbins, who has a reputation as a daredevil race car driver, volunteered to make the first descent to see if Shadden was alive. Dobbins signaled by a police whistle that the youth appeared dead.

Physicians waiting at the mouth of the cave confirmed the finding when the body was raised by Dobbins and Don Black of Chattanooga, a veteran cave explorer. Rope attached to a wrecker cable was used to haul the body up.

William Sutherland, ticket agent at Ruby Falls, said earlier he had refused the boys permission to explore caves under his supervision.

Mystery Hole, located on a seldom traveled road and containing an underground "mystery falls" in its caverns, was chosen.

500,000 Cheer, Weep As Ike Lands at London To Shore Up Alliance

'Well Done' Cries Greet Eisenhower

By MERRIMAN SMITH

LONDON (UPI)—Hundreds of thousands of cheering Britons turned out Thursday night to welcome President Eisenhower who flew here from West Germany on the second lap of his dramatic Western European swing.

Police estimated that from half a million to "over a million" persons lined a 16-mile route from London Airport to the U.S. Embassy residence to hail the President.

Normally staid Londoners wept unashamedly as Eisenhower drove through the streets of the city he helped defend in war. They cried, "Well done, Ike," and "Hip, Hip, Hooray."

GAVE VICTORY SIGN

Eisenhower, his eyes moist with emotion, waved happily to the crowd and made the "V" for victory sign.

The President had flown in from Bonn, where he had six hours of cold war talks with West German Chancellor Adenauer earlier Thursday.

Eisenhower told an extraordinary news conference in the West German capital that he deplored "bomb-rattling" tactics in world diplomacy and he believed his coming talks with Russia's Khrushchev might "melt the ice" of the cold war.

He also issued a joint communique with Adenauer pledging U. S. support for ending "the tragic division of Germany," and defending free West Berlin.

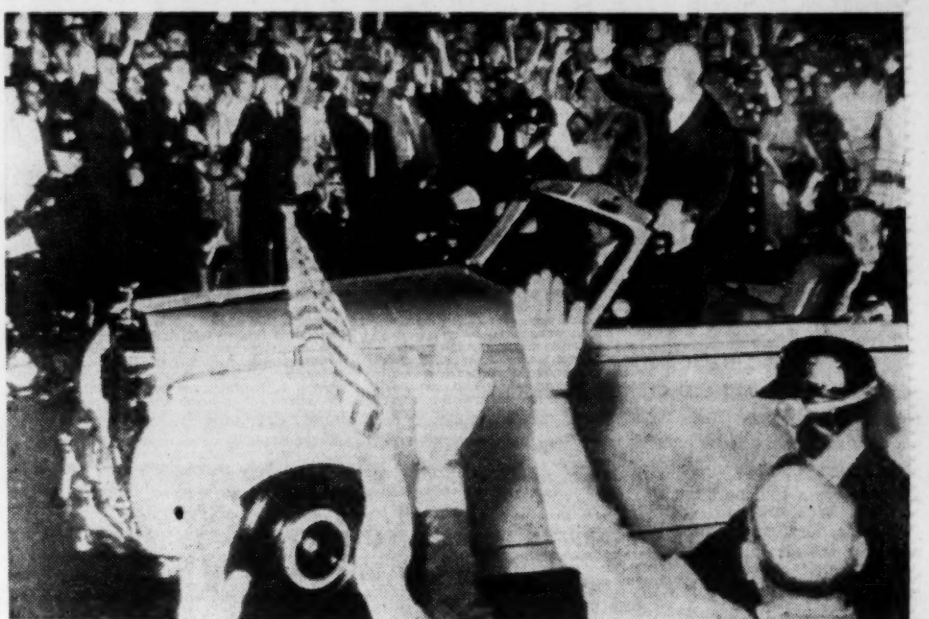

LOOKED FRESH

The President still managed to look fresh when he stepped from his Boeing 707 jet transport plane that touched down at London Airport at 6:40 p.m. (12:40 p.m. EST).

In a formal speech at London Airport, he pledged full U. S. support to Britain "in the defense of freedom, liberty and the dignity of man."

Then he entered a Rolls Royce

20 Fined In Liquor Crackdown

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford handed out additional fines and license revocations for beer and liquor law violations Thursday and added a stern warning that "we intend to follow the law."

It was the third straight day on which the commissioner and his alcohol control unit had conducted hearings in the current crackdown.

Thursday's action brought to a total of 35 the cases handled in the three-day period.

Punishments included seven revocations, 20 fines and five probation sentences. Action was deferred on three others.

SALES TO MINORS

Most of the cases in the current crackdown were for sales to minors or Sunday sales. Other accusations ranged from selling whisky in beer establishments to sale of moonshine.

Time after time at the hearings, Oxford told those being punished:

"I don't want to single out anybody, but I want the word to get around that we intend to follow the law."

Similar warnings were issued by J. B. Rhodes, director of the miscellaneous tax unit, who conducted some of the hearings.

"Don't come up here again," Rhodes told several who were fined and placed on probation. "Just send in your license if we catch you again."

CHALLENGE AGE

Most of the cases heard Wednesday and Thursday were from Albany, Augusta and Upson County.

At both days' hearings, several

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The House brushed aside Republican warnings of another possible veto Thursday and sent President Eisenhower a $1,050,000,000 omnibus housing bill.

The vote on passage was 283 to 105. This was 241 more than the two-thirds majority that would be required to override a veto.

The Senate passed the measure Aug. 18 by 71 to 24, a veto-overriding margin of seven.

IKE DISLIKES BILL

The bill is a substitute for a $1,375,000,000 measure that the President vetoed July 7 as extravagant and inflationary.

Before leaving for Europe, he sent Congress a special message

Georgians voting for the housing bill were Blitch, Brown, Forrester, Mitchell, Pilcher and Vinson. Preston was paired for the bill. Davis and Flynt voted against it. Landrum was absent.

Tuesday in which he called the substitute "seriously objectionable in some of its features."

All attempts to shape it more to his liking were defeated on the House floor Thursday, as they had been in the Senate.

LAST CHANCE

The bill's Democratic managers concentrated on mustering big majorities for the measure to discourage another veto. They asserted that it represented the last chance for any housing legislation this session.

President Eisenhower's veto of the earlier measure was sustained by the Senate Aug. 12. The vote of 55 to 40 was nine short of two-thirds. Both houses must override to enact legislation over a veto. All Eisenhower vetoes have either been sustained or allowed to stand without challenge.

Major provisions of the new housing bill include $650,000,000 in grants to carry forward the Title I Urban Renewal-Slum Clearance program for another year. The administration had recommended $300,000,000 for each of the next two years.

The bill would also authorize

Official Suspended In Racial Incident

By TED LIPPMAN

The superintendent of East Point's parks and recreation department has been suspended after a water safety demonstration by white youths at a Negro swimming pool.

East Point Mayor J. G. Stith said he suspended James R. Grayson at a meeting of the city council's parks committee Wednesday afternoon.

The exhibition at the swimming pool took place Tuesday night.

The boys and girls, ages from about 12 to 20 were members of an American Red Cross swimming instructors class. They demonstrated water rescue and artificial respiration techniques in the Randall street Negro swimming pool before a crowd of Negroes esti-

SEN. LYNDON JOHNSON BLOWS CANDLES
Texan Puffs at American Legion Convention in Minneapolis

Cold War Still Rages, U.S. Is Told

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—Sen. Johnson and AFL-CIO Chief George Meany joined Thursday in warning Americans to be on their guard when Soviet Premier Khrushchev pays a visit next month.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic majority leader, told the American Legion Convention "the greatest tragedy" would result if the free world regards the exchange of visits between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower as a thawing of the cold war.

"This is the delusion that could lead us into letting down our guard," Johnson said.

CONDEMNATIONS KILLED

The Legion followed up the warnings by giving half-hearted approval to Khrushchev's visit. Resolutions condemning the Russian's U.S. tour were killed in committee, and never reached the convention floor.

The ruling body of the nation's largest veterans' organization also elected Martin B. McKnealy, a 44-year-old bachelor attorney from Newburgh, N. Y., as the new Legion commander.

McKnealy was the only candidate nominated to succeed Preston J. Moore of Stillwater, Okla., and his election was made unanimous. The Legion's new head is a suave-appearing World War II veteran who rose from private to the rank of major.

RECOMMEND DIGNITY

The Legionnaires urged Americans to "accept the Soviet premier's visit with the dignity common to free men," but also to "be alert and to recognize... that Khrushchev heads the deadliest conspiracy in world history; and that its declared purpose is to destroy the United States and the free world."

The delegates apparently had heeded the plea of Vice President Nixon to them earlier this week not to torpedo the Khrushchev visit.

But they went on record against any further visits between U.S. and Russian leaders and against any summit conferences.

WANT TIES CUT

They also demanded an end to diplomatic relations between America and Russia unless the Soviets release U.S. citizens held behind the Iron Curtain, hold free elections in satellite countries, and end espionage against the U.S. and its allies.

Peiping Reopens Quemoy Shelling

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The Chinese Communists broke the lull on the offshore island front Thursday by firing at both Quemoy and Kaoteng for the first time in 10 days.

Kaoteng, tiny island in the Matsu group 150 miles north of Quemoy, was hit by 24 shells, the Defense Ministry said. The Communists discharged 15 rounds at Quemoy.

Halt Reds or Lose Asia, Chiang Warns

Communist Tide at Laos

TAIPEI (UPI)—Chinese Nationalist President Chiang Kai-Shek and Premier Chen Cheng called on the free nations of Southeast Asia Thursday to take collective action to halt the Communist threat to Laos while there still was time.

Chiang warned that if Laos fell to the Communists, "the same fate will overtake all Southeast Asian nations, and very quickly, too."

Chiang's heir apparent, Chen, said that if the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) was prepared to meet the Laotian crisis, war would be averted in the area. SEATO should "take action now, while there is still time," he said.

The nationalist leaders spoke out against the Red threat in separate interviews with a group of visiting Thai newsmen.

Chen said the Laotian crisis confronted the United States with "a crucial test" of its leadership in Asia.

"If the United States sits idly by, then the other states in Southeast Asia will gradually fall to the Communists," Chen said.

"The United States should express a clear-cut attitude and make no ambiguous statements."

Chen said Laos required American military equipment but could fight without American troops.

The U.S. State department announced Wednesday that it would give Laos more money and equipment to permit temporary increases in the royal army and local militia units.

"Nationalist China and Thailand, Laos' neighbor, certainly do not want to see American boys lose blood there," Chen said. "There is no need for Americans to fight. They only need to supply equipment."

The Laotian rebels were "equipped by all the Communists and the Russians," Chen charged.

Quake-Battered Mexico Counts Increasing Toll

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Planes and boats rushed help Thursday to quake-battered southern Mexico and carried on a difficult count of dead and injured.

There still was no accurate count of the dead from Wednesday's earthquake, the worst of the year in this country, but estimates ranged from 10 to 48. Officials said 14 deaths had been confirmed in Vera Cruz state.

Although the severe quake was felt in six states, most of the heavy damage was reported in the southern portion of the state of Vera Cruz.

The port of Coatzacoalcas and its surrounding area, hit hard Wednesday, felt another light shock before dawn Thursday.

Red China 'Miracle' Proves Big Fraud

Chinese Communists, in a frank admission of error which may have been made necessary by worse news to come, state their June report of greatly increased food and industrial production was too high.

It was certainly that. What the new report does is cut the grain and cotton figures almost in half. Steel, which was to have been upped to exciting figures by the small rural furnaces, is well down. Most of the steel so produced was listed as unfit for industrial use.

All this will have a serious impact on the Kremlin's thinking. It almost certainly will be in the Khrushchev mind when he talks with the President of the United States. It may, indeed, have been there when he sought such conversations.

His partner, instead of being able to go it alone, will continue to need help from the Soviet Union. The Chinese Communists had excited much of Asia by their optimistic figures. They claimed to have found, through communism, an exciting new way to accelerate industrial progress.

Now, in the light of cold reality, they have discovered that communism offers no short cut. It is not a breakthrough.

Premier Khrushchev had predicted in a speech last January, made to the party's 21st congress, that the Communist world produced almost half the world's grain and cotton. That guess included the Peiping predictions, now in self-confessed error of about 50 per cent.

That this new situation will require substantial Soviet revisions in thought, planning, trade and supply is inevitable. It will have reverberations in Soviet planning for East Germany which must now produce more to make up some of the loss in Peiping's estimates.

How much loss of face this means for Red China is for the future. Certainly the new facts will not go unnoticed by India and other nations in East Asian areas where desperation born of backwardness caused more and more turning to what Red China was calling a miracle of communism. Turns out it wasn't a miracle. It was a failure.

Control of Propane Fire Shows Value of Training

While the downtown Atlanta community continued with business as usual Wednesday afternoon, disaster was narrowly averted only a few blocks away.

The propane gas fire at the Campbell Materials Co. could have exploded into tragedy had it not been for cool thinking and action under fire by Atlanta firemen and particularly by truck driver E. W. Faucett.

Driver Faucett is the man who shut off the gas at the tank truck, thus keeping the tanker from becoming a veritable bomb.

Control of the Campbell Materials fire proves again the value of training and discipline to meet emergencies.

Congress Still Pinches Our Diplomatic Service

In an era when the United States—for its own survival as well as that of Western civilization—has had to assume leadership of the free nations in a contest which may last indefinitely, its diplomatic corps is still understaffed, underfinanced and unable to fulfill a role commensurate with its responsibilities.

For instance, we are about to undertake exchanges of visits with Khrushchev yet Congress just recently eliminated from the department's budget funds for 18 new positions for a special Soviet affairs division. With pressures increasing in every area of the world and with U.S. interests expanding accordingly, Congress still turns a deaf ear to areas other than the military in which this battle must be fought and won.

It is traditional for Americans to suspect "striped-pants" diplomats. Unfortunately this is still reflected in Congress. The latter's membership still has not grasped that the survival and security of this country depends on meeting challenges in the political and economic fields as well as in the military. The struggles in those areas will become intensified.

Reports have it that U.S. consular offices abroad are unable even to handle the stream of American tourists, much less take care of trade and diplomatic affairs. While British, French and German major diplomatic posts are permitted huge entertainment allowances, Congress pinches our own funds for such purposes to the extent of deep embarrassment.

Top diplomatic posts thus often go to wealthy political appointees who can afford to spend their own funds. This may have been fine in days when the British Navy and British diplomats stood guard over the world. It is poor business in an age when American policy is felt in every nook and cranny on earth.

The United States needs a topflight diplomatic service—a career service—in today's power struggles. The quicker Congress gets over its provincial prejudices and recognizes the world in which we are living, the better off we will be.

Ike Continues Quest For War's Alternative

President Eisenhower in an unprecedented but necessary press conference at Bonn, Germany, passionately defended his duty to seek an honorable peace.

He could say that the aging Adenauer, whose country and its former capital, Berlin, are major problems in the cold war, favors the discussions coming up with Premier Khrushchev.

The President, who yesterday left Bonn for London, continues to follow the course he feels is necessary. He is trying to make the people of this country, especially the refugee groups who understandably are opposed to talking with Khrushchev, see the alternative. The alternative is a steady, accelerated drive to war.

But what the President wants to do is to have it well understood that he will not negotiate any separate deals with Khrushchev. He will explore the possibilities of peace. He will not agree to any plan for spheres of influence.

Those who oppose the talks should come up with their own ideas. Do they favor a drive toward more tensions and war? At this point that seems the only alternative.

Change Is a Factor With Which We Live

If you are interested and will write the U.S. Department of Agriculture for its latest bulletin "Keeping Abreast of Change," as prepared by career official Phillip Aylesworth in the Agricultural Extension Service, you will find that the legendary safe, deliberate life of rural America is no more.

It is being replaced by the hurry and dangers that are such a part of city life. It is not merely that machines and highways are changing the way of doing things on the farm, family relationships also are changing with equal rapidity.

And the report notes no one is more aware of this than the ministers and the school people. The report says, in part:

"The technological revolution in agriculture is resulting in many changes in the structure of farming. There are fewer farms with larger, more integrated business operations—increased capital requirements—greater dependence on services off the farm—more specialization—increased mechanization. "Changes are also taking place in community institutions and services. There are larger and more complex institutions—greater dependence on services beyond the immediate locality—an increase in the number and kinds of organizations—membership in special interest groups is increasing—consolidation of schools—changes in communication and transportation—maladjustments of community services and local government."

It should be recognized that a time of change or transition is a time of danger. Change is resisted. Many persons who have blinded their eyes to the facts of it try to make it something which "outsiders" or "subversive influences" are trying to impose. Most people like "the way things are." When this status changes they are unhappy and will not face the truth.

Herein lies the danger—a point which worries religious leaders and educators. The report is recommended reading.

The Smaller the Pest, The Harder To Combat

The ancients had a proverb, "Heaven save us from the gnats, we can take care of the elephants ourselves."

The saying came to mind as we read that insects kill more people than snakes and that Georgia stands second in the nation in the number of persons dying from poisonous bites and stings.

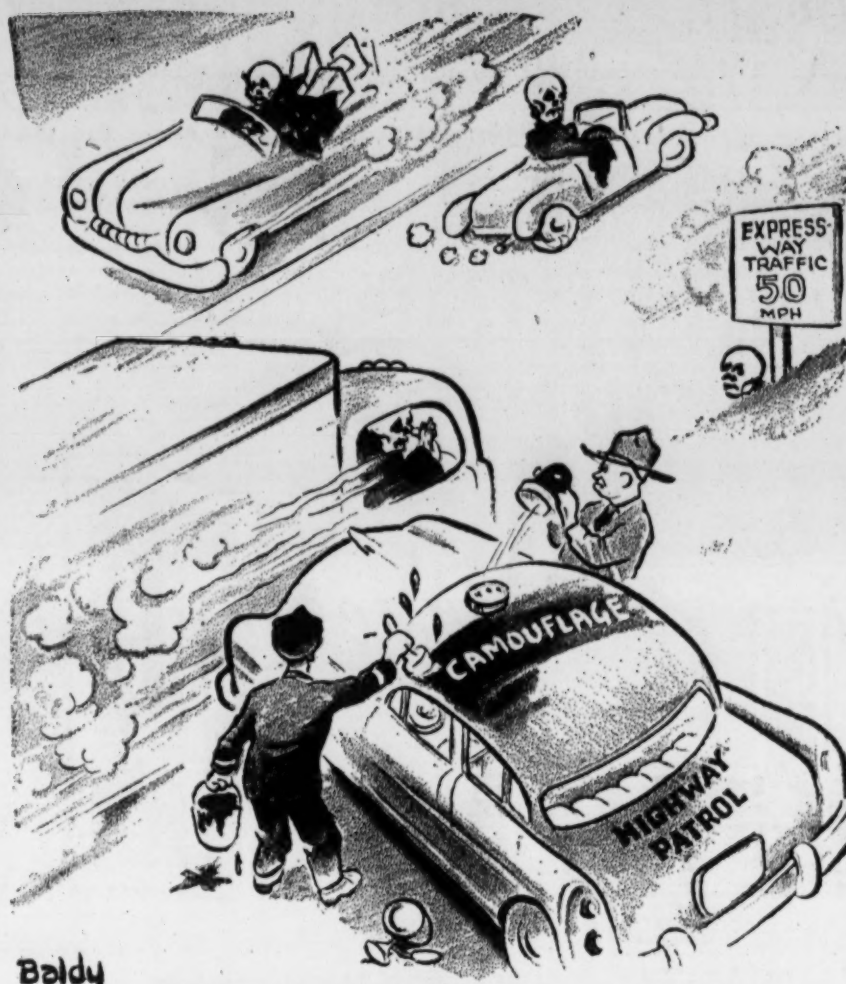

The statistic is reminder that bees, wasps, yellow jackets, hornets, spiders and others of their kind are not to be brushed off lightly nor to be antagonized unduly or treated with contempt.

And as we didn't have enough bothersome insects, a new pest has invaded America.

It's a fly classified as Musca autumnalis and it looks much like the housefly which is Musca domestica.

The Department of Agriculture release didn't adequately mark the difference between the two.

But don't let that stop you when you see a fly. Go ahead and swat it.

'Taxation Should Be Equalized Because State's Levy Rate Is Same on All Counties'

Dahlonega — About 60 years ago I heard a lawyer who had represented Lumpkin County in our Legislature say, "I am going to the courthouse and swear my annual lie."

I asked another lawyer what he meant.

He replied, "He is going to make his tax return."

During a number of years I was associated intimately with tax digests of Dahlonega and Lumpkin County. I never have heard one person approve the system in use. Taxes should be equalized on a statewide basis because the state's levy is the same rate on all counties. The very few counties that have increased their returns to a reasonable value pay more than their just share of state taxes.

'Labor Legislation Can Go Too Far'

Decatur — Now that our senatorial committee assigned to labor racketeering has done such an excellent job, let's be careful not to overplay our hand by pressing labor legislation which will hurt, even crush, legitimate, honest organizations of labor.

There is as you must know many more good unions than bad. Let's remember too there is some bad business leadership about which the racket committee should speak.

It is only a small minority of union leadership which should be removed, by no means not all of it.

Atlantan Condemns 'Fifth' Magazines

Atlanta—I wish to congratulate Ralph McGill on his article regarding the dire effects of extremist hate propaganda which has found its way into the receptive minds of a few of our young people.

However, I would like to go McGill one better, and ask about the dire effects of sex and filth magazines which are to be found in many news stands about the city.

In the opinion of this citizen, this latter condition is a far greater threat than the hate propaganda referred to by McGill, because it practically screams at our young people from every street corner. In fact, some supermarkets have let the bottom fall out of their standards, and now this filth can be purchased along with household groceries.

As a private citizen, I feel powerless to do anything about this situation from a legal standpoint. However, there is nothing to stop me or anyone from going to the proprietor of the drugstore or supermarket where we shop and notifying him that either the filth goes or we as a customer go. If enough protests are made in this manner, we can see the beginning of the end of this great menace.

'Hitlerism' Called Threat to Peace

Atlanta — If we are to believe the Biblical story, the flood that destroyed the then-known world began with a cloud no larger than a man's hand. The rise of Hitler, a fanatic that almost destroyed the world, began in a German beer hall.

We have recently seen what destruction one boy with a "Hitler" complex could bring to a city the size of Columbus, Ga.

And now from Frankfurt, Germany, comes a report (UPI), well authenticated, telling of the "Hitler Youth" movement now being 40,000 strong in West Germany. Is it not now time the free world should recognize this as being far larger than a man's hand or a German beer hall, which makes it an immediate threat to the peace of the world and the tranquility of the United States?

Negro Leader Asks Race To Halt Crime Increase

It is unusual for a prominent Negro to point publicly to a vicious crime, to take note that it was perpetrated by Negroes and to call on fellow Negroes to take greater responsibility in helping to curb the high crime rate among Negroes. Representative Charles Diggs, Negro congressman from Detroit, did it in Congress the other day.

Some Negroes want to hide and hush up the problem. Some like to ignore it. Some would blame it largely on poor housing, low income and lack of opportunity—from which Negroes suffer far more than whites.

One well educated, thoughtful Milwaukee Negro told us that he felt no special responsibility to or for his fellow Negroes; that if there was a Negro problem it was a community problem, shared by all citizens, regardless of color. There is logic in such an attitude, but as a practical matter Negroes generally and individually suffer the most serious consequences when the crime rate among Negroes rises conspicuously higher and more rapidly than among non-Negroes.

That has been happening not only in Washington but in many other large Northern and Western cities in recent years. And the serious beating of a playground attendant here Thursday by a gang of Negro boys is just quility of peoples everywhere who believe in freedom and decency?

If we want wars, we can get them. In fact, we can almost dictate their coming. We can get war a little faster if we do not enjoin the reckless hordes who push "Hitlerism" and the suppression of minority peoples.

We can get it, too — just a bit more slowly — by the simple, lazy process of standing idle while the extremists bestir themselves every day. We can have tyranny if we do no more than maintain a dignified, disastrous silence.

Democracy must be a positive force offering the people freedom and a goal with which to oppose positive forces that would destroy us, and it.

'Electric' Gets A New Battery

The old-timer remembers the electric. The electric was a horseless carriage which attained a degree of use and popularity in the 1910's and 1920's. The motive power was a storage battery and the handicap was the frequent recharging. As the gasoline engine became more refined, folks with electric cars just let the batteries run down and stay that way.

The president of DePauw U. had an electric automobile. We students called it Prexy's Glass Showcase. When the dignified owner discarded the car, Sammy Culpepper, from Puerto Rico, bought the buggy, parked it in a secluded spot and left it there as a convenient place in which to sit with his date and discuss such high-voltage issues as Lindbergh's flight, Charles G. Dawes and Hoover prosperity.

Modern science improves upon the old and sometimes brings it back.

Lovers, Latin and otherwise, in parked cars, electric, gasoline, or gas turbine, still talk about the same things. But the vehicle has changed.

Come now firms in allied industry up North to recharge the electric automobile. The model they have in mind, they say, promises a top speed of 58 m.p.h. and 240 miles from fill-ups.

The refinement is that the fill-up or recharge is by plugging in to the nearest wall outlet, 110-volt.

The advantage evidently will be exhaustless, odorless, shiftless and noiseless operation.

Which brings up the story of the fellow who drove an electric car from Los Angeles to Atlanta on 48 cents worth of current. But it costs him $37,865 for the extension cord.

And why not an all-transistor electric automobile?

LEST WE FORGET: Of Rudolph Valentino who died 33 years ago this week, an anonymous writer said a year after the passing: "There has been nothing in the history of stage or screen to equal the passionate sincerity of devotion evoked by Valentino among his countless women admirers."

Then, lookie, lookie, lookie, here comes "Kookie!"

I LIKE THIS: "You can fool some of the people all of the time—and if you're not careful, one of them will be you."

Halleck Breathes Fire on Democrats

WASHINGTON—Charlie Halleck's story is the Republican success story of this year and of this session of Congress. It has now also become the story of a man openly in search, 12 years later, of a Republican vice presidential nomination which until the bitter end he had believed was his in 1948.

It would have been, as it turned out, a poor prize then. For 1948 was the year Truman confounded pollsters, pundits and his theoretically unbeatable opponent, Dewey, and so returned to the White House. The Dewey running mate, chosen after Halleck thought he had it in the bag, was Earl Warren, new Chief Justice of the United States.

Still it is a prize Halleck now seeks for 1960 and in the most unabashed way. He has let it be known that he would be happy to take second place on the 1960 Republican ticket no matter who heads it, Vice President Nixon or Gov. Rockefeller of New York. You can't, as the politicians say, get more "available" than that.

At the opening of this Congress Halleck grew tired of the heretofore unavoidable waiting on the aged Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts to step down as House GOP floor leader. So Halleck simply moved in. He organized an anti-Martin rebellion — a revolt in which the avowed "neutrality" of the White House amounted to a pro-Halleck position. And he ousted "Old Joe," who went down fighting with a melancholy gallantry but with far too little support from colleagues who owed him much.

Once Halleck joined the group of Republican congressional leaders who meet weekly with the President, it was plain that something very new had been added. Martin used to go to the White House and return to the Capitol in total calm. Halleck goes down breathing fire against the Democrats and returns hurling large chunks of brimstone at their heads.

Beyond doubt, he has put partisan steel into the spines of the House Republicans. Beyond much doubt, his example of eager partisan combativeness has often stiffened the President himself. The wide use of the presidential veto during the current session is partly attributable to Halleck's urging.

When Halleck was put into the leadership by bumping Martin, it was widely said among his backers that he would be "more liberal" than "Old Joe," who is 74. This, as the saying goes, was a laugh, indeed. For Charlie himself, at 58, is scarcely a very young Republican — this short, heavy, compact, lined-faced Westerner. At heart he is a strictly Old Guard Republican who is willing to bend a bit when party necessity demands a more liberal stance.

He is not, therefore, more "forward-looking" than Martin; he is simply a brilliant, if somewhat cynical, combat leader in a party which has few of such as these. This quality, if he gains the vice presidential nomination, would be his real contribution to the GOP ticket.

'Meeting House' Is Apt Church Title

People used to refer to the church building as "The Meeting House." That is a good name for it because it describes the highest purposes of the church. In the oldest book of the Bible the cry is made, "Oh that I knew where I might find Him." That cry has arisen from nearly every human heart.

We do want to be sure of God and the record of man's search for God is a long and thrilling chapter. Men shall always seek God.

Also, the Bible teaches us that God is searching for man. This fact is taught even in the story of the creation. And Jesus told how the shepherd sought the lost sheep. Jesus also said, "The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10).

The facts are: Man seeks God—God seeks man, and the church is the "meeting" house. The church building reminds men to find God and to be found by Him.

The church is a "meeting house" for people, too. The best friends most of us have are the friends we meet in church.

Whenever I see a church building, I am reminded of something else—the fact that there are those who appreciate the church to the point that they give their money to it. Buildings are costly and the mere fact that a building is there is proof that there are those who believe in their religion.

There are always some who scoff and criticize the church, but there are also those who are willing to join with the Christ who said, "I will build My church."

A third message comes to me whenever I see a church building. I am reminded of the permanency of the church. Most church buildings are built to outlive those who built them. Some are built to stand even for centuries.

The erection of a large church building in India caused a Hindu village chief to declare, "We used to think that Christianity would soon pass away and that the missionary would leave this country. But now this great church building is a sign to us that your religion is for everybody and that for all time it is firmly established."

When a congregation of people build a church they are saying through that act that they believe the next generations will continue to worship God in the sanctuary.

When you pass by a church building, listen to what it says to you.

This GOP Report Will Be Upsetting

WASHINGTON—At first it looked impossible—the idea that the 43-member Republican Committee on Program and Progress could ever agree on anything but a collection of refurbished and resounding cliches. Don't spread this about, but my information is that under the persuasive, do-things chairmanship of Charles H. Percy of Kenilworth, Ill., the report is going to break exciting new ground for the Republican Party.

Far from being "reactionary, negative and against," it will be progressive, positive and for a wide range of urgent actions.

There's no doubt about it, the report isn't going to please everybody. In fact, that is the secret of the committee's success. It soon saw that if all it could do was produce the lowest common denominator of controversy between, say, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, it might as well submit the dictionary (all the words are there) and close up shop.

Instead Chairman Percy, who is himself something like a quiet atomic reactor, persuaded his colleagues to accept these premises:

That the committee was not drawing up a national platform designed to unite dissident elements of the party.

That its purpose was to look forward, not backward, that it should define the major problems the nation must solve in the next 15 years and offer practical solutions.

The committee, therefore, began asking itself these questions: "What kind of country do Americans really want? What kind of people do Americans want to be? What kind of life do they want for themselves?"

"We need to think in terms of the future," Percy put it to his fellow Republicans, "and we need to develop a program that will clearly demonstrate that the Republican Party is thinking in terms of the future. . . . We must ask questions we don't ordinarily ask and we must not shrink from answers that are novel and unsettling. This is only to acknowledge that we live in novel and challenging times. . . . The Republican Party must show that it is sensitive and alert to the problems of our time as they relate to the individual—that we are a party with a heart as well as a mind."

While the Percy committee report is still in its final drafting stage—it will be ready about Oct. 1—there is no doubt that most Republicans and many others will find it a "novel and unsettling" document. That's good. It would expect that in mood and direction:

It will avoid political labels like liberal, conservative, radical, right and left, and center on what needs to be done and how best to do it.

It will deal with the Communist challenge but will stress that doing what needs to be done anyway in defense, education, science and economic expansion is the best way to meet the Communist challenge.

It will favor freer trade and will support expanded trade in consumer goods with the Soviets. It will indulge in no wishful thinking about tax reduction.

2 Teen-Agers Indicted For Murder in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—A grand jury Thursday issued two first-degree murder indictments resulting from a savage outbreak of gang violence on the lower east side last Sunday.

The jury indicted John Cruz, 18, a Puerto Rican boy, for first degree murder in the shooting of Theresa Gee, a Negro girl three years younger than he. Cruz, leader of the Forsyth Street gang, admitted the shooting but said Theresa's death was accidental.

Another member of Cruz's gang of Puerto Ricans and Negroes, Julio Rosario, 14, died Tuesday of a stab wound suffered during the Sunday night clashes.

Indicted for first degree murder in Rosario's death was Miguel (Gypsy) Castro, 17.

Flood Kills Baby Swept From Dad

VIROQUA, Wis. (AP)—Storm clouds packing death and destruction battered southwestern Wisconsin before dawn Thursday taking three lives, including that of a little girl swept from the arms of her father by a torrent.

Two-year-old Barbara Larson was carried to her death in the raging waters of the Kickapoo River when her father, Harold, attempted to wade to safety.

Steel Talkers Recess

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel strike negotiators adjourned their talks Thursday until next Wednesday to enable both sides to review the deadlock and "re-study their positions."

The announcement came from Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, on the 44th day of the walkout of a half million basic steelworkers.

There was no indication whether the five-day lapse in the negotiation sessions would be followed by a possible fresh approach in the bargaining.

Spokesmen for both the major steel companies and the steelworkers union stressed that the adjournment should not be considered as a breakdown in negotiations.

Laos Strife Blamed on Soviet Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) charged Thursday that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has been "calling the signals" for Communist rebel attacks in Laos.

He told the Senate Khrushchev was insulting the free world's intelligence if he thought he could come to this country and talk peace while directing the Red uprising in the strategically situated southeast Asian nation.

Some U.S. officials believe that if Khrushchev is not actually behind the Laotian attacks, he could at least call them off if he wanted to.

CHINA ACCUSED

Another school believes Red China is behind the fighting in Laos in a maneuver to discredit Khrushchev's U.S. tour, which it never favored.

The State Department said on Wednesday that reports on the number and kind of Red troops attacking the Laotian government have been meager. A spokesman made the statement in announcing that additional emergency aid was being sent the royal government to beef up its armed forces.

Officials said the emergency arms and equipment would be airlifted immediately to Laos. Enough money and equipment will be sent to give the 25,000 man Laotian armed forces an additional 5,000 men.

SAME OLD TRICKS

Keating said Khrushchev has the power to stop the Communist attacks in Laos but he said the Reds are using "the same old trick that the Communist Chinese used in Korea—maintaining that an invasion of forces controlled from Moscow is a 'civil war'."

He said Khrushchev's "record" should be kept in mind when President Eisenhower sits down to talk with him.

DEPORTING GIRLS

Keating said he also has received information that the number of political prisoners in Hungary is now almost as great as it was just after the 1956 revolution "and that mass deportations, including that of young girls, are still taking place."

He said the Laotian fighting and the Communist record generally made it more important than ever that Congress vote money for an adequate foreign aid program.

He said he hoped that by the time Khrushchev arrives here Congress will have passed such a bill to show its determination to maintain free world defenses.

Car Kills Girl, 6, Starting in School

Excited Child Runs in Street

Excited over her first school day, a 6-year-old girl dashed into the street near her home Thursday and was killed by a passing automobile.

The death of Brenda Carol Sparks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Sparks, 2405 St. Paul Ave., NW, was Atlanta's 52nd in traffic for the year. Forty-six were killed in a similar period of last year.

Skunky the Cat Is Home After 2,000-Mile Trek

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP)—After traveling 2,000 miles in a year and a half, Skunky has turned up at his old home in Minneapolis.

Ralph Morie, who came here three years ago with his wife and three children, tells the story:

"We left Skunky—a black cat with a white stripe—with my sister-in-law, Joyce Johnston, in Columbia Heights near Minneapolis.

The kids put up a fuss so we had him shipped out to us by air. "A year and a half ago Skunky disappeared. Now we get a letter from my sister-in-law saying the cat is there—skinny and starved and footsore, but alive.

The child was to have registered Thursday as a first-grade student at the Carey Elementary School.

Patrolman J. E. Barfield said he was told that Brenda was returning from the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Bennie S. Ray, 2404 St. Paul Ave., when she darted into the street.

With Brenda at the time were her nine-year-old sister, Gloria, and their grandmother, Mrs. Homer Bragg.

Barfield said the girls had gone to Mrs. Ray's home to ask if her daughter, Minnie Lee Ray, 14, could go with them to school.

Told that the older girl could accompany them, the excited youngster whirled and ran into the street, Barfield said.

Minnie Lee saw the approaching car and shouted, "Watch out!"

Barfield said he was told the child ran into the path of a car driven south on St. Paul by Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Hatch of 1325 North Hightower road, NW. He said no charge was placed against Mrs. Hatch.

YOUTH CONVICTED — JASPER, Ala. — James Harold Herron, 17, pleaded guilty to raping the wife of his ninth grade teacher and was sentenced to life in prison. His mother, Mrs. Clarence Herron, holds up hand in effort to prevent picture-taking. Herron said he wanted to get even with the husband who had expelled him from school.

East Point Parks Director Suspended in Race Incident

in allowing white females to participate in a water safety demonstration at Randall street pool.

The Red Cross-conducted program ended abruptly after the father of one of the white girls involved arrived and ordered her to leave.

Stith said the program was sponsored by East Point and conducted by the Red Cross.

Grayson, who was master of ceremonies at the pool, had no comment.

The use of the white swimmers was apparently due to a last minute change in the planned program.

Original plans called for the use of the Red Cross "talking boat" act. This is a boat equipped with microphones that broadcast water safety rules. When the boat was unavailable for use, due to the illness of a paid Red Cross official, the white instructors' class was asked to fill in.

Stith said Arthur Kaplan, a volunteer Red Cross worker in the water safety field, was in charge of the program. He stopped by the white pool and asked the young swimmers to fill in for the talking boat, Stith said.

The mayor emphasized that the whites and Negroes were never in the pool at the same time. "I have affidavits from all involved," he said. "I'm sure of that fact."

Councilwoman Mrs. Irene Kidd, who is a member of the parks committee, said the situation was "regrettable."

"We city officials didn't know about it," she said. "It was the American Red Cross instruction class."

Another member of the parks committee, B. D. Purcell, called the suspension a "reprimand." He said he was "pretty sure" Grayson would be reinstated.

Car, Truck Crash Hurts 2 at Duluth

Two persons were injured, one seriously, late Thursday when a speeding car crashed into a dump truck loaded with gravel near Duluth, the State Patrol said.

John E. Scott Jr., 35, of Rte. 2, Duluth, was admitted to Emory Hospital in serious condition with internal injuries and a badly injured right leg, troopers W. L. Reid and Roy Bennett of the Gainesville Patrol Station said.

Samuel Hays, 23, Negro, of Rte. 1, Lithonia, driver of the truck, suffered a broken rib.

Troopers said the auto and the truck were demolished in the head-on crash. They added the motor was ripped out of the car driven by Scott and the body of the truck, filled with gravel, was dislodged from the frame on which it rested.

Mrs. C. H. Glass, Dentist's Wife, Dies Here at 58

Mrs. C. H. Glass, 58, died at home Wednesday. She was the wife of retired Atlanta dentist Dr. C. H. Glass Sr.

Mrs. Glass, the former Ruth Alverson, was active in church and garden club work. She was a former member of Gordon Street Baptist Church and taught Sunday School at the Sylvan Baptist Church for 17 years.

Besides being a member of the West End Garden Club, she helped found the Pomona Park Garden Club.

She lived at 1862 Shepherd Cir., Southwest.

Funeral services will be Friday at 10:30 a.m. at Carmichael's Chapel with the Rev. W. H. Rittenhouse officiating. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Survivors include three sons, C. Howell Glass Jr., Miami, Fla.; Dr. Lamar F. Glass and Dr. J. W. Glass; a sister, Mrs. Naomi A. Haley, and two brothers, James H. Alverson and Judge Luther A. Alverson, all of Atlanta.

NAACP Chief Switches, Rules Out Savannah Integration Push in 1959

SAVANNAH (AP)—No Negro students are expected to attempt entry to white schools in Chatham County this year, according to W. W. Law, Georgia's NAACP president.

Law's statement Thursday was an about face from an early summer statement when he said he expected one and possibly more Negro children to stage an integration attempt here this fall.

"It would be foolhardy for Negro children to attempt to enter white schools now because the school board has no plan for it," he said.

He said he had received letters from several Negro children and parents asking NAACP help in getting into Savannah's white schools.

But he said he didn't think they would try to get in the schools this year. However, he didn't rule out the possibility.

Law is an employee of the U.S. Post Office here and Georgia Attorney General Eugene Cook said Wednesday he is investigating Law's activities to see if he's violated the federal Hatch Act which prohibits federal employees from engaging in political activity.

As I See It

What Makes a Show Wrong for a Child?

By PAUL JONES

Which of the children's television programs do you consider the "most objectionable"?

I find most all of them offensive, but not for the same reasons that the PTA and other groups do.

Except for Captain Kangaroo, American Bandstand and the Dick Clark show, I regard the so-called children's shows as rather dull and absurd.

I have always looked upon the heroics of Superman, the man who flies like a bird, as preposterous and even sometimes funny.

But the National Association for Better Radio and Television has named Superman the most objectionable children's program on the air.

I think that is absurd in the first place but I find the reasons for so naming the Superman show even more unreasonable.

"Too many children . . . have tried to copy him by jumping from high places expecting to fly," the NABRT says.

I'm inclined to think there's something wrong with the children—not Superman.

When I was a youngster I used to revel in the hilarious antics of the Our Gang comedy group. I don't recall that they had any serious influence on my behavior in childhood and I'm sure they have not influenced me in later life.

But, the NABRT says, the Our Gang comedies are a bad influence on children . . . they "defy authority, disobey parents and wantonly destroy property."

How about the way Goldilocks messed up that porridge for the bears and how she messed up their beds? Is that not wanton destruction of property?

THAT'S NOT ALL. The association doesn't like the Three Stooges, either. "Even the live stooges (they're probably referring to the commercial announcers on the show) feel impelled to warn the children not to follow their example or they might be hurt," the report says.

Even Rin Tin Tin is off-limits for children, the association feels. "The canine canniness of Rin Tin Tin is absolutely unbelievable."

Roy Rogers, I have always thought, represents everything that is honest and right. But "Implied threats of violence and crime theme make this program unsuitable."

Even Buster Keaton and Disneyland are "objectionable."

Popeye cartoons are in "very low taste." . . . Bandstand "lacks grace and gaiety." . . . Fury "can untie knots, knock guns out of villains' hand" and thus is objectionable.

AT THE SAME TIME the NABRT feels that the Dick Clark show which features nothing but rock 'n' roll music is great for the youngsters. I do, too.

The PTA, incidentally, has heartily endorsed Clark's show.

"In this musical variety showcase featuring top popular artists and recording stars, Dick Clark, in his likable and sincere manner, provides a program for the teen-agers' enjoyment," says NABRT.

I HEARTILY CONCUR in one appraisal made by the group. They think Sheena, Queen of the Jungle, is a "bomb" and I do, too. Her ape companion, Chim, "seems blessed with more intelligence than gorgeous Sheena whose scanty garments seem designed to distract attention from her lovely but immobile face."

LETTERS

MRS. FREDERIC L. BEERS SR. of College Park writes: "In your column of Aug. 25, speaking of the panels on various subjects on Today in Georgia, you say: 'What about the series on sex and politics?' Apparently there wasn't enough interest on the part of the viewer to repeat those shows."

"Could it be that the average listener has more SEX than religion? As for politics, isn't that a dirty word these days?"

I can only say that television is probably the most sex-less medium in the world of entertainment.

L. H. of Decatur writes: "Could you tell me what ever happened to those old cowboys such as Lash LaRue, Hoot Gibson and Johnny Mack Brown?"

They're all out to pasture.

Juror Ellery Saves Innocent Man

By THE TV SCOUT

8-9 (NBC)—Ellery Queen repeat starts out with a ridiculous premise—Queen is allowed to sit on a murder jury—and then proceeds to tell a fuzzy story. It's about the aftermath of the trial, in which Ellery manages to convince his fellow jurors of the man's innocence. It gets fairly complicated, but there are some individual good scenes. And, as usual, where Queen goes, cute chicks follow—in this one, you'll see Gloria DeHaven, Susan Cabot and Ruth Warrick.

9-9:30 (CBS)—The Phil Silvers Show repeat was one of the best of last season's comedies. A cool orchestra leader turns up as a new recruit in the platoon, and Bilko quickly envisions a European tour for all concerned. Playing the musician is the very funny Ronnie Graham, who also had a hand in the script he wrote the ending, for example) and serves as technical adviser for the pop talk. Graham is something of a high priest of pop. Silvers and Graham hit it off so well Phil hired Ronnie to write material for the special he did soon after this film was first shown, last Jan. 2.

10-10:30—The Western Theater is galloping up with another tired nag—even the old paint on this one has faded. "The Mirror," starring Joanne Dru and Tom Tryon, had its first outing on the old Jane Wyman series in '56. It was repeated in '58, but here it is again. It's something of a love story, about an Eastern girl who marries a Western boy and they have their troubles. But love and re-runs conquer all.

9:30-10 (CBS)—Don't be fooled by the new title on the schedule. Hollywood Playhouse is the old Stripe Playhouse without the sponsor who so generously gave his name to the former title. But these are the same re-runs.

9:30-10:30 (ABC)—77 Sunset Strip repeat is a must for any fan of Edd Byrnes as Kookie. In this one, "The Canine Caper," Kookie gets to make a little love, solve a crime and generally act the hero. In fact, Roger Smith, the junior grade gumshoe in charge, has little to do but rescue Kookie after he gets in over his carefully-combed head. Julie Adams plays a French movie star, whose kidnapped dog starts all the fireworks.

FOLK WARBLER

Belafonte To Star in TV Special

(Copyright 1959, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Harry Belafonte will star in a special hour-long television show on Thursday, Dec. 10, over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

The performer, best known as a singer, will include in the telecast his specialty, folk songs from many nations. The program is the first of five 60-minute specials to be sponsored by Revlon, Inc., on CBS next season.

According to a spokesman for Belafonte, this will be the first time that he will appear as the central star of a television show. He has made numerous guest appearances and last season starred in a 15-minute segment of a musical show. He also appeared at length on a Steve Allen Program.

"The Splendid American," designed to tell of three American groups working to help the people of Communist-menaced Laos, will be shown on American Broadcasting Company TV Sunday, Sept. 27.

The documentary, to be televised from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m., was named in answer to "The Ugly American," a novel about Americans who do not understand the needs and aspirations of Asia. The novel, published by W. W. Norton & Co., was written by Eugene Burdick and William J. Lederer.

Film for the show was made in the jungle area of the little nation. The show will deal with the work of Thomas A. Dooley, who heads a private hospital unit six miles from the Chinese border; Dr. Ras C. Johnson, director of a U.S. educational aid program in Laos; and of Clyde L. Searle, whose international volunteer service team is developing a rural community near Communist North Vietnam.

500,000 Cheer and Weep As Ike Lands at London

with Prime Minister Macmillan at his side and ambassador John Hay Whitney through crowd scenes that were almost unprecedented in the history of this city.

Way upon wave of usually solemn Londoners smashed the thin blue lines of police that vainly tried to clear a path for the President's car.

"I've never seen them turn out like this for the Queen," remarked one woman.

OFFICIAL QUOTED

A senior police official said: "I have been on the force for over 25 years and this is the largest crowd I have ever seen."

At the airport alone, more than 5,000 Britons jammed into the few enclosures to which the general public was admitted.

In Bonn, Eisenhower had interrupted his talks with Adenauer to hold a half-hour news conference—his first on foreign soil—during which he:

—Said he believed his exchange of visits with Khrushchev may help break the cold war ice jam.

—Deplored "bomb-rattling" in world diplomacy.

WARNS OF SUMMIT

—Warned it would be a "grave mistake" to hold an East-West summit conference unless progress was assured beforehand.

Expressed the hope his current mission to Germany, Britain and France would pave the way for better relations with Russia.

Despite the intensive pace of his Bonn visit, the President looked fresh and jaunty as he stepped out of his plane at London Airport for a five-day visit to Britain.

He shook hands warmly with the Earl of Gosford, personal representative of Queen Elizabeth II. The Queen, now expecting her third child, is in Scotland and the President will fly there Friday to be her guest at Balmoral Castle before beginning talks with Macmillan.

For Eisenhower, his visit here was something of a homecoming.

RECALLS OLD DAYS

He spent long months in London from 1942 to 1944 planning the invasions of North Africa and Normandy as commander-in-chief of the vast Allied armies that defeated Nazi Germany.

On June 12, 1945, after the final crushing of Nazi Germany, the City of London conferred on him the greatest honor it had to bestow—freedom of the city.

In a brief airport speech the President spoke of his "extraordinary pleasure and true enjoyment" at being back once again "in this land I have learned so much to love."

"I count on this being one of the most enjoyable and fruitful visits I have made to any country in the world," Eisenhower declared.

In his airport statement the President went out of his way to stress a renewed pledge of U. S. support for the people of Britain, Allies in two world wars and the East-West cold war.

"I do not have to come here," he told Macmillan, "to assure you or the British people that the American people stand with them strongly, firmly and determinedly in defense of freedom, liberty and the dignity of man."

It was only the third visit of a

U. S. president to Britain during his term of office. President Truman made a brief stop-over in Plymouth on his way to the 1945 Potsdam Conference. But the last visit of a U. S. president to London itself was paid by Woodrow Wilson 40 years ago.

dealers challenged the age of a boy used by agents in the investigation of charges of selling to minors.

Rhodes said records would prove the boy was not yet 15. The five Albany package stores fined for selling to minors were: Reuben Willis, Sylver Package Store, and Doris E. Wilder, Wilder & Co., $500 fines each; E. L. Roberts, Roberts Package Store; Harry Stanbury, Oasis Package Store; Charles Q. Blackwell, B & M Liquor Store, $250 fines each.

Albany beer establishments fined Wednesday for selling to minors: G. A. Fleming, Burnett's Place, $100; James A. Dulock, Southern Bell Lounge, $100; Ike D. Archer, Ike's Place, $100; Doug Lewis, Doug's Place, $200.

George Ort, Sandunes Drive-In, and Sam Morris, Oglethorpe Drive-In, were placed on 12 months' probation; fine was waived in the case of C. L. Hatcher, Hilltop Tavern, on condition he pay a $192.75 sales tax. fa. All were charged with sales to minors.

Oxford revoked licenses of Frisco Grimsley, Gray's Truck Stop, and W. C. Miller, Miller Ice Co., on charges of selling on Sunday. Oxford said both preferred giving up their licenses to being fined. Jack Barfield, Paramount Lounge, was assessed a $100 fine on the same charge.

In Thursday's action, three beer licenses were revoked: Sidney D. Summer, Albany, sales to minors; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tye, Roy's Bar-B-Q, Americus, sales to minors; H. E. Mills, Whispering Pines, Upson County, sales to minors.

Fined $100 were Doris Bickers, Albany, Sunday sales; Z. J. Young, Albany, Sunday sales; Mrs. Katherine Panzalos, C&S

Driver training will be offered this year in classrooms only. There will be no under-the-wheel instruction.

DeKalb officials expect about 44,000 students Monday, an increase of nearly 4,000 over last year. To cope with a school population that continues to mushroom, DeKalb has added temporary classrooms in 14 elementary schools and two high schools.

Fulton County anticipates an increase of only 1,693 pupils over last year. The Cobb system expects some 23,000 to show up Monday, a jump of 1,803 over last year.

from Hudson Bay. For one thing, they believe Soviet missiles lack the range for an attack on American cities from that distance.

However, the submarine threat is very real for U.S. coastal cities. Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, U.S. chief of naval operations, announced last week the Soviet Union probably has submarines capable of firing ballistic missiles. But it is believed these missiles have a range of less than 200 miles.

When the Polaris is operational, probably by mid-1960, it will have an initial capability of hurling an atomic warhead 1,200 miles. It will have the added advantage of being fired from nuclear-powered submarines. The Russians are using conventional submarines.

The first of the U.S. nuclear subs, the George Washington, will be commissioned early next year and then will begin test-firing the Polaris.

Thursday's shot was the fifth success for the Polaris in 15 tests of the two-stage version. Nine of the launchings were partially successful, with one a failure.

Earlier in the day, a Thor intermediate-range missile registered a successful 1,500-mile flight. More than an hour later a recovery ship retrieved a capsule that popped out of the missile's nose cone near the West Indian island of Antigua. Instruments in the capsule recorded the performance of the rocket and its nose cone.

House Defies Veto, Votes Housing Bill

37,000 new units of federally subsidized low-rental public housing for low-income families displaced from slums. The President opposes any more public housing projects at this time.

New programs of $50,000,000 in loans for construction of housing for the elderly and $50,000,000 for college classrooms would be set up under the bill. The President opposes both.

Other provisions include $250,000,000 in loans for dormitories and other housing at colleges, grants of $15,000,000 for hospital construction and grants of $10,000,000 for urban planning.

Maximum home loans eligible for mortgage insurance by the Federal Housing Administration would be raised and minimum down payments lowered. The FHA's depleted mortgage insurance authority would be renewed to the extent of $8,000,000,000.

In his message Tuesday, Eisenhower asked Congress to lift the FHA insurance provision from the bill and approve it as a separate measure. He said it should not be tied to "legislation which contains features that the administration finds seriously objectionable."

Twitty Considers Race for No. 2 Post

By GENE BRITTON
Constitution Staff Writer

CAMILLA—Rep. Frank S. Twitty of Camilla said Thursday he is "seriously considering" running for lieutenant governor in 1962.

Twitty is the administration's floor leader in the House of Representatives.

Twitty became the first man to announce he may run for the State's No. 2 job. Several others are frequently mentioned as potential candidates, although none of them have said they will run.

Twitty had been frequently mentioned himself, but there has been a strong feeling in high political circles that the veteran south Georgia legislator would prefer a judgeship to the lieutenant governor's office.

CAMPBELL FOR GOVERNOR?

There may be some significance in the fact that Twitty dropped the hint that he may run for lieutenant governor within a few hours after Agriculture Commissioner Phil Campbell made a statement that led observers to believe he may plan to make the race for governor.

Campbell neither said he would or would not run, but he listed a number of issues which are sure to figure in the '62 campaign and stated his position on them.

Campbell has been frequently mentioned as a major gubernatorial contender. But, of late, many observers have expressed the opinion Campbell would decline to make the governor's race in favor of continuing his career as commissioner of agriculture.

"MOST SERIOUSLY"

His statement made it clear to most observers, however, he wants to keep the door open.

Twitty and Campbell are close friends. Both are also considered close to Senator Talmadge. Twitty, Gov. Vandiver's floor leader in the House, also held that post in the Talmadge administration.

He told the Constitution:

"Many of my friends throughout the state have contacted me about being a candidate for lieutenant governor in the next Democratic primary. At present, my intention is to offer for reelection from Mitchell County next year and I am also most seriously considering making the race for lieutenant governor in the next primary."

Atlanta to Fight Loss Of Any Closed School

By HERMAN HANCOCK

City officials for the most part Thursday refused comment on the prospect that three Atlanta schools, brought into the city under the Plan of Improvement, may revert to former owners if closed.

Mayor Hartsfield said the fact that deeds call for reversion of sites to former owners if they cease to be used for schools does not mean the schools would be lost to the city if they were closed to avoid integration.

DEEDS RESTRICTIVE

Reversionary clauses are contained in the deeds for E. Rivers, John Carey and Margaret Fain schools, according to Harry Andrews, city land agent. Andrews made the investigation at the request of the Atlanta League of Women Voters.

The deed for the Rivers school also provides that the school site shall revert to owners if it is ever used as a school for other than "white children."

Hartsfield said the city would do all it could to keep the schools if the issue ever arose.

JARRELL, SAVAGE SILENT

The mayor added that the city long ago adopted a policy against accepting any deeds for any property with restrictions. The three schools in question came into the city from Fulton County under the Plan of Improvement.

Miss Ira Jarrell, school superintendent, had no comment on the matter.

City Attorney Jack Savage said, "I am not going to speculate or worry about a matter so far off it may never become an issue."

Best Schools In U.S. Asked By Vandiver

Constitution State News Service
ATHENS—Gov. Ernest Vandiver Thursday challenged the 4-H and home demonstration club members of Georgia to join with his administration in its policy to help make Georgia people the best educated in the nation.

Speaking at a joint session of the annual 4-H and home demonstration council meetings, the governor declared:

"The plain, unvarnished truth is that we need more, not less education. It cannot be achieved without your help, your understanding, and your prayers and your cooperation."

Vandiver commended the 4-H members for being serious-minded enough to learn by doing in 4-H projects and for being willing to learn in order to equip themselves for a more responsible citizenship and service to their communities and their state.

He also congratulated the home demonstration club women for their contributions as homemakers and leaders of young people in their home communities.

The governor's address climaxed a citizenship ceremony for 4-H members who have reached voting age within the past year. Vandiver was presented a gold key as an honorary 4-H member by Georgia Anne Brown of Clayton County, president of the State 4-H Club Council.

Chinese Admits Plot To Slay Investigator

MANILA (UPI)—A Chinese resident of Manila has admitted ordering the slaying of a former member of a presidential fact-finding committee, police announced Wednesday. Constabulary headquarters said George Chua, alias Chaw Yao Shun, described as a "jobless millionaire," had confessed engineering the July 14 killing of Capt. Hector Crisostomo because he had cracked down on currency smuggling.

Dynamite Control Put to Fulton Board

Fulton County's commissioners will have to decide which county official should handle the issuance of dynamite permits, County Manager A. E. Fuller said Thursday.

The comment was in reference to State Compt. Gen. Zack D. Cravey's criticism of Fulton Tax Commissioner Standish Thompson for "non-cooperation" in Cravey's plan to designate him to control dynamite purchases in Fulton.

Fuller suggested Thursday that before the county can take on any duty, it must be authorized to do so by law. He cited the recent designation of the tax commissioner by law to sell auto license plates.

"It would appear that Mr. Cravey's office has the responsibility for controlling dynamite. Whether he can transfer this responsibility to certain county officials without a law to back it up, I couldn't say," Fuller commented.

Thompson, it was learned, declined Cravey's appointment of him to regulate dynamite sales in Fulton because there was no law requiring him to do so. He also took the position he had "all he could say grace over" in receiving and collecting taxes and selling tags.

Senate Confirms Ga. Postmasters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Thursday confirmed President Eisenhower's nominations of the following postmasters:

Eugene M. Dunlap, Miami, Fla.; Daniel J. Graves, Columbus, Ga.; Raymond D. Hill, Thomasville, Georgia.

Thompson declined comment on the matter.

Fuller, who had discussed the question with Thompson, said he could not say which county office would be the proper one to handle the permits.

Two suggested offices were those of License Inspector Ed Aiken, who investigates beer and liquor license applications, and Ordinary Eugene Gunby's office, which issues pistol permits.

"It will be up to the county commissioners to decide which department should assume that responsibility," Fuller declared.

COACHELLA, Calif. (AP) — Authorities seek three men for questioning about the mysterious death of a woman killed by a truck as she stood on a desert highway.

Jean Elizabeth Wood, 26, was seen leaving a hotel bar in nearby Indio at 2 a.m. Wednesday with the three.

Hours later she was killed on U.S. 99 near the Imperial County line, 20 miles south of Indio and Coachella.

James Fry, 25, of South Torrance, Calif., said he almost hit her with his car as she stood in the roadway, clad in a black party dress. He said he swerved off the road and yelled a warning—but that the girl made no attempt to get out of the way of the approaching truck.

Authorities pieced together this account of the woman's past: She came to a hotel in Riverside, 75 miles northwest of here, June 24, and found work as a cocktail waitress.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Friday, August 28, 1959 13

Base, Riverside, who left her in Indio at 9 p.m.

Early Wednesday, the hotel owner saw her leave the bar with three "athletic-looking young men" whom he believed were from this area. He remembered the girl's black dress and that she was "very pretty—a very attractive girl."

Ex-Mental Patient Wounds Deputy

A former patient of the State Hospital at Milledgeville Thursday opened fire on DeKalb County deputy sheriffs who were attempting to serve a lunacy warrant, slightly wounding one of them.

John Trotter, 2073 Flat Shoals Rd., N.E., was arrested and charged with assault with the intent to murder, Chief Deputy J. Lamar Martin said.

Martin said Trotter ran and hid in a cornfield when he and Deputy Pat Needham attempted to serve the lunacy warrant earlier Thursday. Later, a neighbor reported that Trotter had pointed a shotgun at her.

Returning, the deputies approached the house from the front, while patrolmen flanked it. When Martin and Needham were about 75 feet from the house, Trotter came out and said he was going to kill both deputies, Martin said. He then fired a shotgun, wounding Martin on the hand.

Martin said Trotter again fled into the cornfield, where reinforcements took him prisoner.

Martin said that the sheriff's office had served several lunacy warrants on Trotter in the past, and had transported him to the State Mental Hospital for treatment. He was last released from the hospital two months ago, Martin said.

Two DeKalb County policemen were slightly injured when the car in which they were answering an emergency call to the scene skidded into a ditch at Flat Shoals avenue and Chandler road.

Patrolman LeRoy Fowler suffered an injury to the right arm while Patrolman J. C. Henck had an injury to the right arm and leg. Both were treated at Grady Hospital.

B. M. Dubose Jr. Heads Civil War Centennial Unit

Beverly M. DuBose Jr., Atlanta insurance executive and president of Georgia Historical Society, Thursday was appointed chairman of the Georgia Civil War Centennial Commission pageants and reenactments committee.

Committee members are Col. Allen P. Julian, director of the Atlanta Historical Society; Franklin M. Garrett; J. C. Bonner, history professor at Georgia State College for Women; and Alexander A. Lawrence, Savannah attorney and historian.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Albany Editor Blasts 'Token' Integration

James H. Gray, editor of the Albany Herald, this week attacked those who call integration "a moral issue," sharply criticized advocates of "token integration" and declared, "The Supreme Court is bent on fostering a social revolution."

Gray is a native of Massachusetts.

He said some "publicists, politicians and clergymen — largely confined to Atlanta — are lamenting that the present stand of the state government and the vast majority of Georgia citizens is foolhardy because it constitutes defiance of the law of the land, the penalty for which will be no public education for our state's children."

He said they maintain that, "we must accept at least token integration to insure that our citizens of tomorrow will be properly educated, irrespective of the economic stature of different families."

Chief Fired, 12 Quit

The 12-man Hawkinsville volunteer fire department resigned Thursday night in protest to the earlier dismissal of Fire Chief Joe Bridges by the city commission.

The Hawkinsville department is composed of two paid members—the chief and an assistant—and 12 volunteers.

Bridges was fired Thursday by a 2-1 vote for "inability to get along with other employees." An 8-year veteran of the department, Bridges was given 30 days notice.

Missing Girls Found

Two girls from Three Rivers, Mass., missing a week, were taken into custody in Woodbine, police reported Thursday.

The girls, 12 and 14, were in an automobile driven by Edward McClellan, 17, an escapee from Shirley School, when McClellan was stopped for questioning 29 miles from the Florida line, police said.

The girls told Deputy Sheriff John Hazelton that they left voluntarily after meeting McClellan at Palmer, Mass. Arrangements were made to send the girls home, but McClellan was held on a charge of interstate transportation of a stolen car.

Traffic Injuries Fatal to Youth

AMERICUS—A. T. Childs, 18, of Chula, died Thursday of traffic crash injuries suffered Wednesday, the state patrol said.

The patrol said Childs and another passenger were thrown off a motorcycle when the machine went out of control on Southfield road three miles north of Americus.

The driver evidently lost control of the machine on a curve, troopers said.

"Haven't taken laxatives since"

There's a safe, sure way to correct constipation due to lack of bulk. Read what Mr. E. Newman, Canton, Ohio, writes about it:

"I am 69 years old and have had to take laxatives all my life. But a few months ago I started to eat Kellogg's All-Bran and haven't taken a laxative since."

Let Kellogg's All-Bran help you, too. This whole bran cereal gives you all the natural bulk you need for youthful regularity. Just a half-cup a day, with milk, does it.

Enjoy Kellogg's All-Bran for 10 days. You'll be happy with the results.

Marietta Radar to Track 100 Miles, Avert Crashes

A new radar unit designed to prevent collisions aloft will go into operation next month in Marietta, according to J. B. Smith, Federal Aviation Agency official.

Ghana Doubles Orders From U.S.

ACCRA (AP)—Ghana's monthly orders for goods from the United States—especially big cars and heavy machinery—have nearly doubled since the government recently relaxed restrictions on imports from the dollar area, the American Embassy reports.

The long-range device, called an Air Route Surveillance Radar, allows air traffic controllers to track planes flying within a 100-mile radius of the Atlanta center.

Exact location of the unit will not be made public, Smith said.

Air traffic controllers now must depend on estimated pilot's reports as to the location of their aircraft. Such reports are not always correct, but the new radar device will eliminate most errors.

City Okays $109,350 in Zoo Projects

Improvements costing $109,350 at the Grant Park zoo, including a mall-type walkway, have been approved by Mayor Hartsfield.

Mion Construction Co. will do the work, which will provide improvement facilities generally in the area.

A new, wide walkway with planting in the center, will extend from the new parking area to the cyclorama and the entrance to the zoo area, near the elephant house.

The mall with a fountain in the center will be built over the area now used as a roadway and concession center.

The entire topography of that area of the park will be changed, with eventual plans calling for filling in the lake for development as a part of the extensive zoo.

Ike Hints Demand For a New Geneva

BONN, Germany (AP)—President Eisenhower dropped a hint Thursday that the West may insist on another foreign ministers conference at Geneva before any summit meeting takes place.

Authoritative informants indicated Chancellor Konrad Adenauer suggested a further meeting of foreign ministers when he and Eisenhower met.

A news conference remark by Eisenhower later seemed to indicate Adenauer's suggestion had met a favorable reception.

Eisenhower said any summit meeting "would be a grave mistake unless there was confidence among all of us that real progress of some kind could be achieved."

Such progress, the President continued, must be promised "by either further meeting or further consultation or conclusions of the foreign ministers—or in some other way."

He didn't say what the other way might be, but in response to a question he indicated he would be satisfied if assurances would be given publicly by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Some officials said a meeting of the foreign ministers might be held in Geneva in November after the exchange of visits between Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

Adenauer, it was reported, was said to believe that a summit conference—if held at all—should follow only toward the end of the year.

The German leader has never been enthusiastic about summit meetings. For one thing they are held among the Big Four—the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France.

The 83-year-old German leader also is suspicious of summit meetings because he does not trust the Russians. He was stung once himself when he went to Moscow in September, 1955, and he has a long memory, friends say.

Conferees On Labor At Impasse

'Outside' Boycotts A Major Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opposing positions of Senate and House labor bill conferees appeared to be hardening somewhat Thursday after an eighth day of seeking a compromise formula.

Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.), the conference chairman, scheduled another session for Friday morning and said he still is hopeful a bill might be worked out by Friday night.

But the Massachusetts Senator was unable to report any progress Thursday on three tough points of disagreement.

SECONDARY BOYCOTTS

These involve secondary boycotts in the garment and construction industries and consumer picketing as a part of a secondary boycott affecting a retail store.

The House bill seeks to ban all secondary boycotts. Senate Democrats on the conference, in a compromise proposal presented Tuesday, agreed to accept this principle. But they added several provisos designed to protect established labor union practices in clothing and other industries.

Kennedy said he did not see how his side could give any more ground on the three points still in dispute.

Rep. Griffin (R-Mich.), a co-author of the House bill, indicated the House delegation was in an adamant mood, too.

Griffin said it appeared to him the conferees were far apart on consumer picketing and that he did not think the House side would budge on this. He reported his group made a counter offer on the garment industry problem, but that it was rejected.

"The compromise proposals (presented by Kennedy and his three Democratic Senate colleagues) have a good outside wrapping," Griffin said.

MORE LOOPHOLES

"But when they are looked into closely, you find they create more loopholes. They do not do what the House bill did."

If there is a deadlock, the issues in dispute will be taken to the Senate floor for instructions, and possibly to the House.

"We are not going to give away anything," the bill's co-author, Rep. Landrum of Georgia, said as he walked away from another unsuccessful attempt by the conferees to reach final agreement.

"We might trade a little," said Landrum's House colleague, Rep. Barden (D-NC).

Basement Fire Injures Boy, 8

An eight-year-old boy Thursday suffered second degree burns about the legs when a fire started in the basement of his home where he was playing, police said.

Maurice Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Turner of 2100 LaDawn Lane, NW, was treated at Grady Hospital.

Patrolman G. T. Hodges and J. W. Lewis said firemen expressed belief that the fire started by children playing with matches. They said a lawn mower and a can that had contained gasoline were found in the basement.

British 'Pyramid' To Put 2 in Space

LONDON (UPI)—Plans for the proposed launching of a two-ton "Flying Pyramid" designed to rocket two men 700 miles into space were revealed Thursday by a group of scientists who worked without government aid.

The delta-finned space ship would be Britain's first major step into experimental flights of human beings into space. The flight would take the space ship around the earth four times before plunging back into the earth's atmosphere.

The "Flying Pyramid" proposal was revealed in a paper read at the British Commonwealth Space Flight Symposium. It was worked out by members of the Hawker Siddeley Aviation Advance Projects Group, led by Dr. W. F. Hilton, Britain's top space scientist.

The British team was able to skip over lesser space problems that Russia and the United States have used huge sums to tackle, Hilton said, and concentrate on cracking the toughest problem of all—how to get a human being back from outer space to earth.

Many firms would have to join in any attempt to launch a Pyramid, as the cost would be far greater than the government now planned to spend on such projects, Hilton explained.

He said the capsule carrying the two men in space would re-enter the earth's atmosphere 65 miles up at a speed of 18,000 miles an hour and land at 80 miles an hour 95 minutes later.

The Pyramid would be launched by a two-stage assembly consisting of the British Black Knight and Blue Streak Rockets.

Army May Lose Space Projects, Magazine Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Missiles and Rockets magazine said Thursday the Army may have to withdraw from space exploration and may see its huge Nike-Zeus anti-missile program killed or curtailed.

The magazine said this action would be the result of budget restrictions.

It added that serious consideration is being given to placing the Army Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., under the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Moon Shot Is Prepared

WASHINGTON (AP)—Look for another shot at the moon some time during the period of Oct. 2 to 4.

Reliable sources report that an attempt is shaping up to send a 375-pound American space probe toward the vicinity of the moon and, if all goes well, into an orbit around it.

In its monthly swing around the earth, the moon will be at its closest point on Oct. 4 when it will be about 220,000 miles away.

But even with the best sharp-shooting by the rocketeers, the space probe would take about 33 hours to reach a point 10,000 to 20,000 miles from the moon—conceivably the closest approach that might be made on this particular venture.

When the Pioneer IV Space probe was launched in March, it took 41 hours for it to reach its closest lunar approach—37,000 miles from the moon as it sped past it into an orbit around the sun.

Helicopter Crash Kills Atlantan

Die in Greenland

Capt. James H. Ozier, 43, a former Atlantan and World War II veteran, was pilot of the helicopter which crashed, Wednesday near Thule Air Base, Greenland, killing all seven persons aboard.

Capt. Ozier, a native of Cecil, Ala., was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ozier, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. He came to Atlanta as a young man and lived here for many years before joining the Army Air Corps in 1941.

In January, 1942, he was married at Conyers to the former Miss Mildred Maddox of Atlanta, daughter of the late Charles Thomas Maddox and Mrs. Maddox, who now lives with a son, Charles T. Maddox Jr., in Decatur.

HAVE 2 DAUGHTERS

The Ozier's have two daughters, Miss Mary Ann Ozier, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Mrs. Jacqueline Burris, of San Diego, Calif.

During World War II, Capt. Ozier, then a lieutenant, was piloting a P47 Thunderbolt on a training mission near Caen, France, when he was shot down. He was wounded in both legs and bailed out.

He spent months in hospitals in France and Germany, and returned to Atlanta in 1945.

A career officer, Capt. Ozier remained in the Air Force after the close of hostilities.

STATIONED AT KIRTLAND

He was stationed at Dover, Del., and from 1946 until 1949, he was stationed in Japan. From 1953 to 1954, he was stationed at Eniwetok. His present station was Kirtland AF Base at Albuquerque, where Hrs. Ozier and Miss Ozier now live.

Other victims of the crash included Livingston Lord Satterthwaite, a senior U.S. foreign service officer.

Satterthwaite, 50, was deputy chief of missions at the U.S. Embassy in Copenhagen and was in Greenland on official business.

"Tony" Satterthwaite, as his friends knew him, was born in Philadelphia and listed Ambler, Pa., as his home.

Six of those who died in the accident were Americans, and one was a Dane.

The State department announced Satterthwaite's death.

Capt. Dale W. Robertson, Rhinelander, Wis.; wife, Lorraine E. Robertson, 81 Pico Vista, Novato, Calif.

Col. Kenneth R. Kenerick, commander of the Army 7th Artillery Group at Thule; wife, Edith C. Kenerick, 6917 Woodside Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

Col. James F. Hogan, air attache, American Embassy, Copenhagen, a native of Ashland, Wis.

Maj. Frank W. Chandler; wife, Lorraine C. Chandler, P.O. Box 417 Kingstree, S.C.

The Air Force said the Danish government had requested that the name of the seventh person killed, a Danish national, be withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The Air Force said the helicopter had returned an Eskimo woman to the village of Kanak, north of the air base, following hospital treatment at Thule on Aug. 14.

Kanak is a comparatively new Eskimo village, built by the Danish government for Eskimos who formerly lived in the Thule area.

The opening of the base at Thule drove seals and other food sources of the Eskimos away. The Danish government therefore moved the Thule Eskimos to the new village.

Bugs Bunny And Popeye Float Away

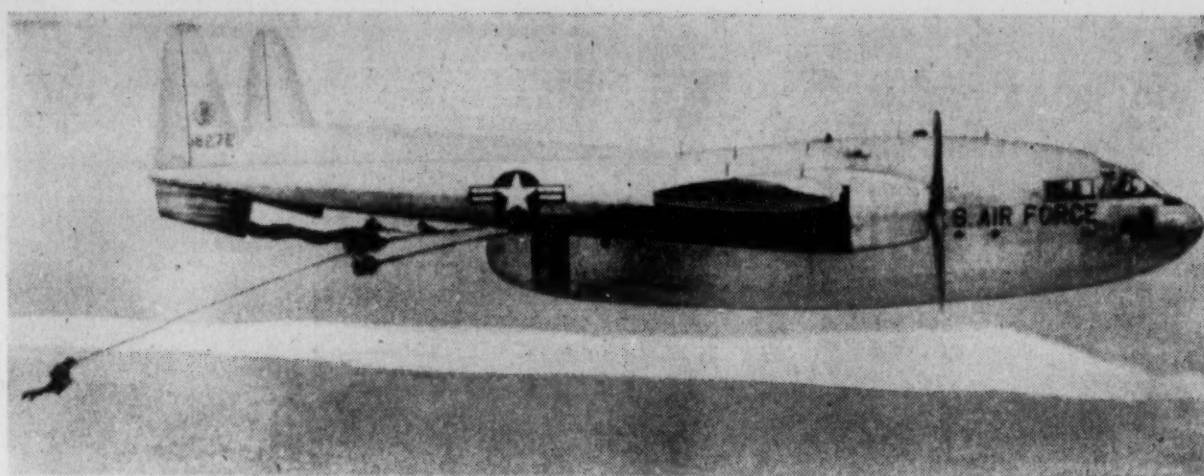

"Popeye" and "Bugs Bunny" got an unexpected ride on a float in the Humane Society parade Thursday night.

The two were really John Holland, 6, and his brother, Wayne, 4.

Their costumes were eye-catching. So eye-catching, in fact, that somebody said: "Look at these characters. Let's put them on this float."

The float moved off. The mother, Mrs. Jack P. Holland, who had turned her back for a moment, missed the children. Told they were on the float she followed them, a block or so behind, to the dispersal point. They weren't there.

WSB broadcast a description of the two and soon there was a reunion. Popeye, Bugs and Mommy reunion. Popeye, Bugs and Mommy.

Chutist Hangs In Suspense

Lt. Henry Hatch, 23, of Sarasota, Fla., dangles from the end of his parachute line which became entangled during a recent training jump of the 82nd Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N.C. Picture was made just before the prop blast from a C119 blew him free. Caught for only a few seconds, he landed safely.

Leash Law To Be Enforced

The Hapeville City Council plans to crack down on violations of a 1954 leash law in order to increase rabies control.

The law, passed in June, 1954, requires all persons owning dogs to confine them on their property and requires a leash, "not more than six feet long" to be used when the dog is taken off the owner's property or off the property of the person in charge of it.

The ordinance requires any dog found roaming the streets to be impounded and, if not claimed within 48 hours, to be put to death.

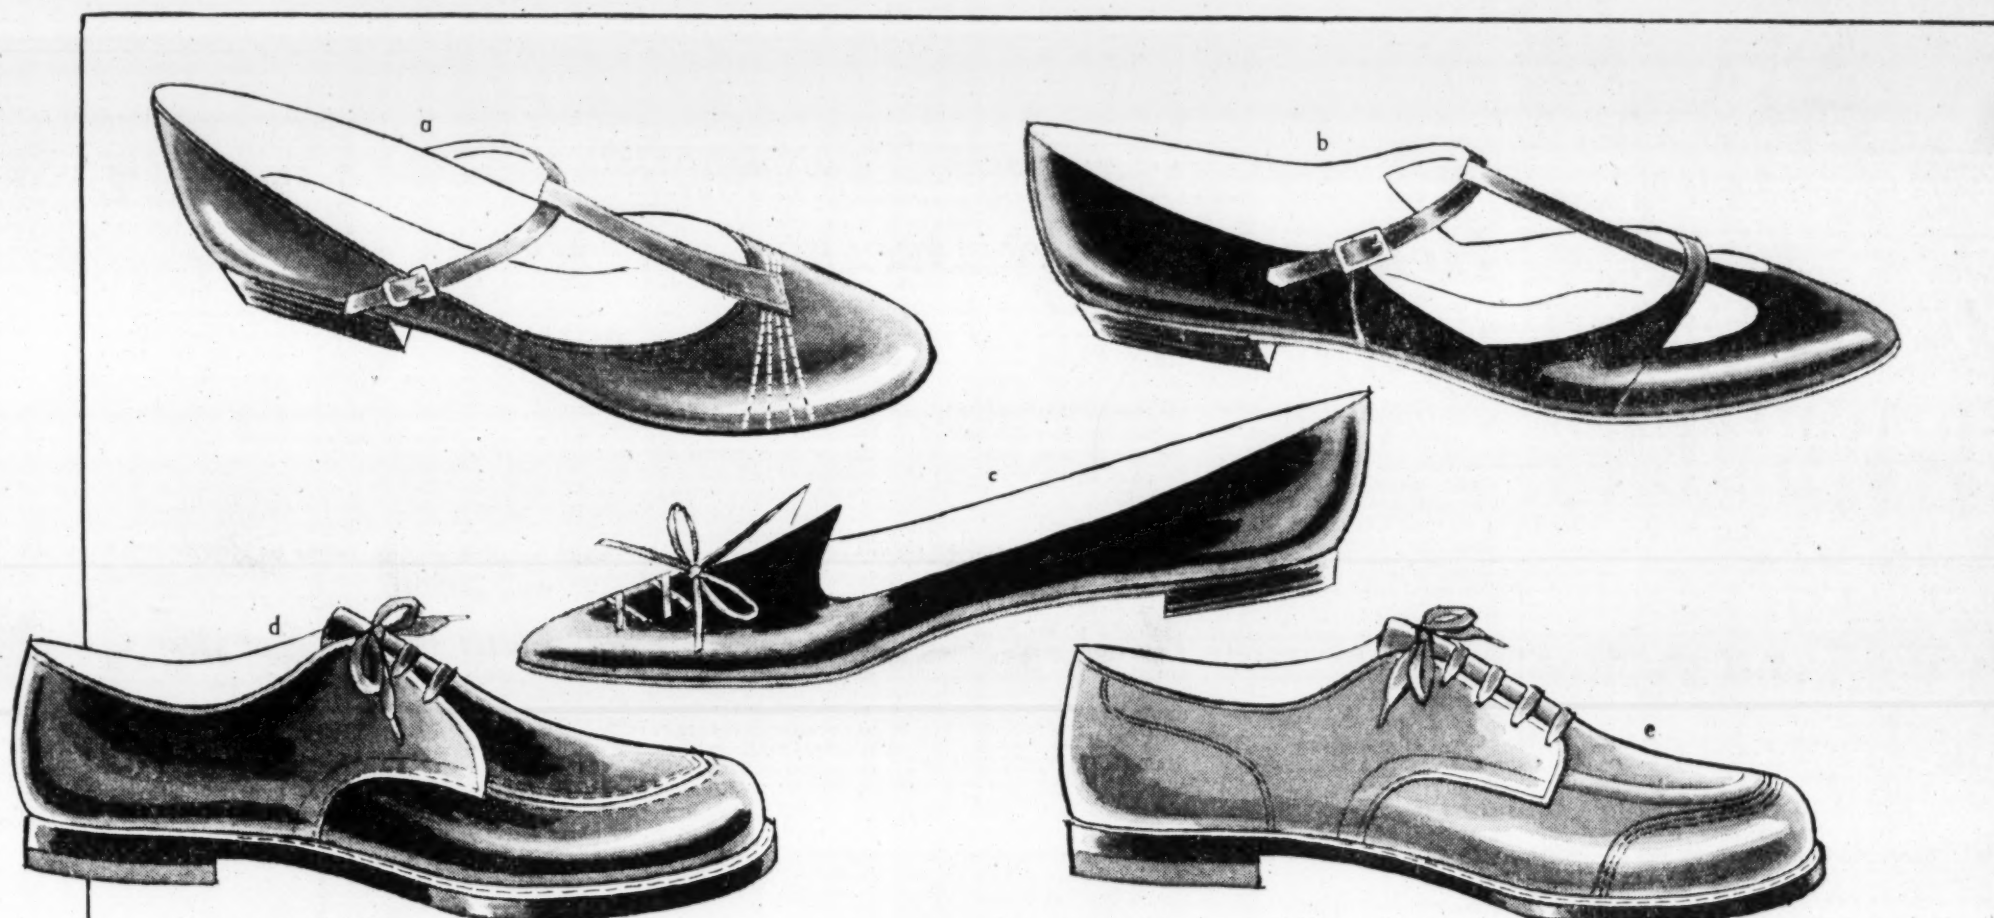

Violators of the ordinance can be fined a maximum of $100 or sentenced to jail for a maximum of 30 days, or both.

Laundry Howls

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Even dirty clothes are going to the dogs these days. An employee of a laundry heard strange noises in a bundle of dirty clothes. Inside was a Chihuahua dog, which didn't want a washing.

Gala Weekend Parties Set at Triple Creek

By YOLANDE GWIN

Triple Creek Farm, that picturesque home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eldridge in Duluth, will be the setting for two gay parties during the weekend.

First will be the barbecue Friday evening when the debutante set will gather and Saturday evening some of the young married set will be entertained.

The Eldridges have loaned their pool so to speak for the barbecue at which Mr. and Mrs. Sam Weyman will entertain for two of the prettiest of the debs—those two cousins, Maxine Wellborn and Mary Hopkins. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wellborn and Mr. and Mrs. Linton Hopkins.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge will entertain some 30 or more couples at a poolside barbecue.

The setting for both parties will be picturesque as well as very effective for late summer entertaining. The pool has an aqua lining and the same shade cloths will cover the individual tables to be placed around the pool. The white umbrellas topping each table are lined with a floral design of blue, green, and aqua. White wrought-iron baskets filled with pastel flowers will be placed on each table.

MR. AND MRS. CALHOUN McDOUGALL JR., will be off during the weekend for Hilton Head Island, S.C., where they will be guests at the William Hilton Inn.

BACK HOME for a visit from her present home in Durham, N.C., is Mrs. George Wilbanks, who with her son, George Rivers, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rivers, at their home on W. Andrews drive.

THERE WILL BE A BIT of happy reminiscence for Mrs. Frank Walsh Jr., this weekend when she attends the Cotton Ball in Chattanooga, Tenn. As Robyn Peeples, she was among the Southern belles attending the ball when she was a debutante. This year her daughter and namesake Robyn Peeples Walsh will be among the bevy taking part in all the social affairs and is one of the girls to be presented this evening at the ball. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh are in Chattanooga for the festivities.

SPEED, SPEED, and more speed, that's the tempo of the times. Proof is the return of that 'round-the-world traveling couple, Dr. and Mrs. Lee Bivings. They were in Honolulu Monday and back at their Habersham road home Tuesday evening, winding up their trip which began in mid-June when they flew to Miami and then to Peru on the first leg of their trip.

GLIMPSED AROUND TOWN: Mrs. Fred Storey in town for a bit of shopping . . . those two sisters, Mrs. Vernon Wooten and Mary Rice lunching at the Capital City Club and looking smart and cool in pastel linen frocks with matching sweaters . . . and Mrs. Wooten receiving compliments on her very, very slim figure. . . Mrs. Ernest Vandiver, Georgia's pretty first lady "school shopping" with her children. . . Mrs. R. H. White and Mrs. Jesse Shelton among thrilled spectators at Fashionata; ditto for Mrs. Jack Adair, Mrs. Leonard Richardson and Mrs. Joe Hutchinson. . . Mrs. Buddy Levenson wearing a high crowned straw hat offset with a red scarf; Margaret Weyman, recent graduate of the University of Georgia, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Ann Weyman, shopping at Lenox Square, both in cool cotton frocks. . . Mrs. Virginia T. Crenshaw enjoying a late afternoon walk down Vermont road. . . Pretty brunette Marian Martin telling friends of her plan to leave next week for Northampton, Mass., where she will spend a year at the Clark School of the Deaf to obtain her teacher's certificate.

ATLANTA'S LOSS will be Charlotte's gain when Mrs. John M. Avent and her son and daughter, Ken and Joan, leave in the near future to make their home in the Carolina city.

Long associated with the Atlanta Civic Ballet, Mrs. Avent will be on the staff of the Brevard Music Center which is headquartered in Charlotte.

Joan will enter Emory University at the fall session and will for that reason be a part-time Atlantan. She will be on hand for La Soiree at the Driving Club on Sept. 3, and on Sept. 9 she will dance with the ballet at their performance in Gainesville.

Ken is here for a few days having just returned from Transylvania Music Camp in Brevard, N.C., where he spent seven weeks as an Atlanta Music Club scholarship student, playing the trombone with the concert band and the Transylvania Symphony Orchestra.

Heavenly Body Dresses Spotlight Young Figures

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Designs for down-to-earth young sophisticates for whom inter-planetary space travel is a not-at-all idle dream will be seen by Atlantans in the Mam'selle junior dress collection being shown today and tomorrow.

Accompanying the collection to Atlanta is Betty Whiteman, a Savannah native serving as traveling representative for Betty Carol, designer.

"Our little jacketed ensembles are called heavenly body dresses because they are shaped to put the figure in the spotlight," pointed out Miss Whiteman in describing the collection.

BALLOON SLEEVES

Capes, hoods and airy balloon sleeves also inject a "space girl" flavor into the creations. And this fall for the first time the collection includes coats to go with dresses. Shapely belts, crushed "orbit" sashes, or midriff-smoothing princess darts clearly define the waistline.

And with emphasis on showing the figure, skirts are shaped to make the very least of a waistline, too. This is handled in many ways such as full gathered or softly pleated skirts, the circular skirt tapered in at the waistline by radiating darts, and soft tucks or gathers gently rounding out the hipline of slim skirts.

Because Betty Carol always was faced with the problem of fit in expensive clothes for her young junior figure, she gives unusual attention to it in her own designs. She believes that the secret of fit in young-in-figure clothes is proportion and her sheaths make a point of proving her pre-occupation with it.

SALT AND PEPPER TWEED

A good example may be noted in her salt and pepper tweed that hugs the body from shoulderline to hemline. The waistline is highlighted with double rows of buttons and a pert white linen collar is stationed high around the neckline marked by a girlish big black bow.

"Day watch" dresses will be shown in wool plaid with tiny jackets topping a bodice of white. Typical is the plaid of brown, black and white with its darted skirt rising up to the bustline to meet a white top. Over the white is a minute plaid jacket with braid trim down the front and at the wrist of long sleeves.

From the ballet world comes the inspiration of a group in the collection known as tutu tunics. The tunic is shown for both daytime and after-five in wool, buttoning over a slim skirt like a coat dress for full and gathered in more formal fabrics. The tutu sleeve is another Mam'selle feature and is either single or double ruffle flirtatiously projected from a dropped, extended shoulderline.

DIAGONAL TWEEDS

For daytime the favored fabrics are diagonal tweeds, orlon-blend plaids, flannels, wool jersey, imported flowered wool challis and lightweight tweeds. These more often appear in blue, orange, violet, gray, gold and two shades of brown, one dark and the other a warm medium shade.

After-five clothes are fashioned from a wide range of luxurious fabrics, including rich brocade, brilliant satins and satin ottoman printed with deep-toned flowers.

Late-day fashions appear in black velvet and sheer wool with satin, organza, and taffeta.

His Girl Takes Him For Granted

DEAR MRS. RICKER:

I am 15 years old. My girl friend is very nice and I am pretty sure she loves me just as I love her. She is very popular and loves to flirt. She doesn't do it to hurt me but she just can't resist it. Whenever I take her out and she sees a boy she knows she just has to show me that she knows him and she will say anything that comes to her mind just to start a conversation. If someone asks her who she goes with, she always hesitates to say my name. If you have an answer to this one, please publish it.

I suggest that you look at your relationship with your girl friend a little more closely. What would happen if the situation were reversed? Let's suppose you were doing what she is doing. Do you think she would stand for these things? Do you think she would believe that you "love" her? I am certain the answer to both questions is definitely, "No!"

In my opinion, the best way to solve your problem is to have a little more "backbone." It is all very well to be a congenial, easygoing fellow but girls have more respect for a boy who refuses to be taken for granted—and I believe that is the cause of your problem.

PREMATURE BABY BORN AT GRADY SLEEPS IN INCUBATOR
Staff Nurse Mary Chadwick Checks Formulas Carefully Before Feeding Time

On the Increase

Premature Baby Requires Utmost in Skilled Care

By JOYCE GEMMILL

What accounts for the tremendous increase in the birth of premature babies in Atlanta? Is it too much tension? Pressure?

According to Margaret Wooten, supervisor of the premature nursery at Grady Hospital, there has been almost a 400 per cent increase in the birth of premature babies at Grady since 1952.

Hospital records show 250 premature births in 1952 while only six years later figures jumped to 1,070 for 1958—evidence that some unknown forces are at work causing a marked increase in the premature cradle roll.

Here are a few facts concerning the premature baby as revealed by Mrs. Wooten: The smallest premature baby ever to survive at Grady was born in the sixth month of pregnancy, weighed 750 grams or the equivalent of 1 pound, 10 1/2 ounces.

SELDOM ARE CAESAREAN
This is even more amazing when it is realized that doctors hold out very little hope for survival for the premature baby weighing under 1,500 grams or 3 pounds, 5 ounces. Seldom is the premature baby a Caesarean delivery either. Mrs. Wooten says most Caesarean babies are usually big babies.

The premature baby requires the utmost in skilled care and by necessity must be placed in a special nursery in a hospital equipped to handle the incubator set.

Temperature is kept at 90 degrees and no premature baby is fed until after 24 hours have elapsed after birth. Feeding is then administered through a tiny tubing apparatus placed into the nostrils alternately. The diet is made of a special preparation following a feeding of dextrose in liquid solution.

The premature baby has a wardrobe consisting of diapers only and many are born with healthy crops of hair. When required, oxygen is administered in a form of a vapor jet stream. When the premature baby has reached a weight of over 4 1/2 pounds, he is released by the hospital for home care. Mrs. Wooten says the odds then for the baby's survival are extremely high.

COUNSEL FOR MOTHER

In order to acquaint the mother of the premature baby with facts about her baby and give her explicit directions for the care and feeding of the premature baby after its release from the hospital, public health nurses counsel the mother as well as assist in alleviating any worries the mother may have developed regarding her newborn.

To date, doctors are unable to give us any reason for the increase in premature births although many theories have been aired. One Atlanta doctor is strongly of the opinion that emotional stress might possibly be a factor.

Another doctor strongly disagrees, contending: "Some women just do not carry their babies to full term and we have no evidence whatsoever to substantiate the statement that the premature birth was caused by any emotional upset."

Miss Frances Folsom Is Wed To Mr. Bundy

Mr. and Mrs. Marion B. Folsom of Rochester, N.Y., formerly of Georgia, announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Frances, to Charles Thomas Bundy II, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Bundy of Eau Claire, Wis.

Dr. E. Scott Byers performed the ceremony in the chapel of Brick Presbyterian Church, and a reception followed at the Folsom home.

Mrs. Martin L. Millsbaugh Jr. of Baltimore was her cousin's matron of honor. Mr. Bundy's father was his best man and ushers were Peyton Pitney of Hillside, N.J.; Paul Tison Jr. of Waldwick, N.J., and Marion B. Folsom Jr. of Chapel Hill, N.C.

The bride was graduated from Chatham Hall and Mount Holyoke. She also attended graduate school at Columbia University. Her father is former Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is now director and management adviser of Eastman Kodak Co.

Mr. Bundy is a graduate of Kenyon College and holds a master's degree from Columbia University. After a wedding trip, he and his bride will

Teachers Learn About Grove Park From Tip To Toe To Chill Tonic

There was a day when the school-teacher was as intimately acquainted with the homelife and background of her pupils as the family doctor. She either had a home of her own in the community or boarded in one of the local homes, attended the nearest church and participated actively in the joys and sorrows, the weddings and funerals and baby-havings of the folks closest to her classroom.

School consolidation ended that intimacy in rural areas and it has long since vanished among city teachers, except in rare instances. Frequently the teacher lives 10 or 15 miles from the school and the only thing she knows about the community is the route to the school parking lot.

To one group of Atlanta teachers that seems a sorry, impoverishing situation. More imaginative, or perhaps possessed of a livelier curiosity than most, the teachers of Lena Cox elementary school told their principal last fall that they would like to know something about Grove Park, the community served by their school.

Clyde Kimball Jr., the principal of the school, took them seriously and devoted considerable time this summer to boning up on the subject. The other day when the 38 Grove Park teachers came back for the before-school orientation session, Mr. Kimball was ready for them. He had a Grove Park guide book, complete with map, to give them; and a school bus waiting at the door to take them on a tour.

"It was almost as much fun and as interesting as some of those tours I took in Europe," a teacher who has just come back from a trip abroad said later.

The tour took in the whole Grove Park area from boundary to boundary, giving the teachers a fair idea of the range of homes of their 1,100 pupils, including the prettiest houses and gardens and the worst. It covered the parks and the business section, where most businesses are owned by local merchants, and their guide pointed out such things as the complete absence of liquor stores and apartment buildings.

Stops were made at such community institutions as the recreation and health centers, where the teachers met playground supervisors and the school nurse and heard little talks about the services that are available to their pupils. They also visited the office of the area school superintendent, Dr. Ed S. Cook Jr., and West Fulton High school, both places, surprisingly enough, most of them had never seen.

The history of the community which Mr. Kimball dredged up, with the aid of a paper written by Jimmy Holcomb, a West Fulton student in 1951, was interesting to me. Once called "Fortified Hills" because of the heavy fortifications established there before the Battle of Atlanta, the section was not really settled until 1902, except for the vacation cabins of a handful of Atlantans. In 1902 Dr. E. W. Grove, of the famous Grove's Chill and Fever Tonic, came down from Kentucky and began a housing development with the unique idea of having the streets laid out with parks between so every house looked out on an area of lawn and tree. The streets, all called "Places," were given girls' names—not for his daughters, as is popularly supposed, but just because they were pretty names, Mr. Kimball said.

The first school in Grove Park was a private one, built by Dr. Grove, who also paid the teacher's salary. When the community outgrew a one-room frame school, he built a stone school, now used as a residence in Elizabeth Place, and one of the two teachers was Mrs. Lena Cox. Mrs. Cox later became principal of the present school when the county took it over, serving until four years ago when Mr. Kimball succeeded her as the school's third principal in its 57-year existence.

The teachers visited the old stone school house and the fortified hills from which Lena Cox pupils have always brought in Civil War relics. And now they are making plans for another tour—this one on the city's expressway system.

The Lena Cox teachers' idea seems to have turned out so well that other schools might want to copy it. Perhaps they'll branch out and take parents along next time.

Miss Frances Lectures Parents

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Frances R. Horwich, an educator best known for her television show for tots, suggests a five-point program for helping your child do well in school.

The educator, in a book just published called, "The Magic of Bringing up Your Child," offers as the first rule: Have confidence in the youngster.

Second, she says, be at home when the child starts off to and returns from school. He needs the assurance of your presence and your welcome each day.

Third, admire his new achievements and encourage his new interests.

Fourth, be actively interested in his school experiences. The author says that "at first he probably won't talk much about them. Do not ask him, 'What did you do in school today?' His answer probably would be, 'nothing.' But ask the child something specific, such as 'Did you sing that new song today?' or 'Did you play a new game?'

"Try to get to know your child's school. Join the Parent-Teacher Association and try to attend any school affairs to which parents are invited."

Fifth, encourage your child to bring his friends home, and to visit "those of them you feel are good friends for him."

Miss Horwich, popularly known as Miss Frances of the televised "Ding Dong School," has received more than 60 awards and citations for her educational program.

Miss Moody Is Bride of Mr. Callier

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Callier have returned from Durant, Okla., where they attended the marriage of their son, Sterling Grimes Callier, to Bettye Arthur Moody of Calera, Okla.

The ceremony took place at the First Christian Church of Durant, with the Rev. Elmer Little officiating and the bride's nephews, Jim and Bill Moody and Arthur Burroy, lighting the candles.

Mr. Callier was best man for his son. The bridegroom chose for his usher-groomsman his brother, James Callier Jr. of Houston, Tex., the bride's brother, Joseph L. Moody of Wichita Falls, Tex.; Stewart Webb of Plainview, Tex., and Gail Goodloe of Houston.

Mrs. Banks Burrow of Tulsa attended her sister as matron of honor. Her bridesmaids were Mrs. James Callier Jr. of Houston, Shirley Lancaster of Durant, Mrs. Robert Compton of Lake Charles, La., and Mrs. Don Marshall of Dallas.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Arthur Clemens Moody, and after the ceremony he and Mrs. Moody were hosts at a reception in the church parlor.

The bride's gown of white chiffon and Chantilly lace featured a court train. Her veil fell from a petal cap of matching lace, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Killarney roses.

George Adolphus Sr. Dies; Retired Postmaster Here

By JIM BENTLEY

George W. Adolphus Sr., 75, retired Sandy Springs postmaster and a past president of the Georgia Postmasters League, died Thursday at his home at Palm City, Fla.

Mr. Adolphus had lived in Florida since his retirement four years ago.

He had been an evangelist, railroad, plumber, postman and civic worker.

He was working as a train inspector in Atlanta in 1905, when he broke his back and lost his left leg in a train accident. He was bedridden 350 days.

In 1908 he received a degree in theology from Meridian Male College.

He was married in 1916, and worked as a plumber during the week and preached on Sundays. He was invited to preach at revivals throughout the United States, relatives said, and helped found the Whiteford Avenue Baptist Church here and a Baptist church at Hollywood, Calif.

Mr. Adolphus had invested heavily in California real estate when the 1929 crash wiped him out, he told newsmen several years ago. He moved to Sandy Springs, and within a few months

State's Mayors to Expand Small-Town Research

Mayor Charles A. Cowan of Cartersville told the Georgia Municipal Assn. Thursday that smaller towns "have their full share, and possibly more, of the problems in the total economic development of Georgia."

Cowan, president of the association, called for better municipal planning based on "sound information and solid thinking."

The association's board of directors, at their meeting here, followed up his suggestions by voting to expand research activities. A new staff member will be added to its research department, an official said.

The organization also voted to invite members of the Georgia congressional delegation to a fall dinner meeting, discussed a study of municipal problems to be undertaken with the Government Operations Committee of the State Senate, and planned to sponsor a "Georgia Mayors Day" early next year during the General Assembly session.

The board elected an executive committee composed of Mayor

Gowan, City Commissioner Carl E. Pruett of Griffin, Mayor W. B. Withers of Moultrie, Mayor Frank Tigner of LaGrange, Mayor James Clary of Warrenton and Mayor B. F. Register of Columbus.

The association also decided to hold district meetings this fall and to continue training institutes sponsored by various municipal officials.

A spokesman said the association would continue to support a proposed constitutional amendment that would permit the state to grant financial aid to cities and towns.

Jet Clipper Flies Frisco To London

LONDON (UPI) — A Pan-American Airways International jet clipper made its maiden flight from San Francisco to London on Thursday, but not across the North Pole as planned.

The Boeing 707-321 named the "Liberty Bell" landed two hours late after delays in Los Angeles and Boston. Aboard were 105 passengers and 10 crew members.

The flight was the first to Europe using intercontinental versions of the 707. The scheduled trip over the North Pole was abandoned when it was learned the refueling base at Frobisher Bay, Baffin Island, was not yet ready to accommodate the huge craft.

Twice-weekly Pan Am jet service from London to San Francisco will start Thursday.

Private School On Fairburn Rd. Expecting 160

The Arlington School, a new private school at 2605 Fairburn Rd., SW, will start registration of pupils on Sept. 10 and will officially start classes on Sept. 14.

C. E. Owens, headmaster of the new school, said Thursday the school has an operating faculty of 12, which will be increased as the school adds one new grade a year through the 12th grade.

Grades one through four will register Sept. 10 at 9:30 a.m. and grades five through nine will register Sept. 11 at 9:30 a.m.

Owens said he anticipates an initial enrollment of 160.

These are no juvenile delinquents... these are nice kids in trouble!

the motion picture "blue denim" talks heart to heart with young America!

Listen... to the sounds of "blue denim"... to Janet, age 15, saying... "Maybe I could just disappear somewhere or—just drown myself!"

Listen... to Arthur, age 16, saying... "I'm responsible and I know a way out!"

Listen... with compassion and understanding! Don't close your eyes and pretend these things don't happen to nice kids too!

Ask yourself... how could it happen to Janet... so shy, so young, so very much like yourself! Where did she go wrong... and why... WHY... WHY? And what about the boy... he was really a decent kid... ask his mother, his father, his friends!

"Blue Denim" goes into the solutions teenagers are forced to find for themselves! It is strong drama with a viewpoint.

Say Grace
At Meals
As a Duty

QUESTION: Is saying grace before meals a Christian duty or merely a nice gesture? — T. P. L.

ANSWER: Giving thanks to God before meals is a Christian duty and something for which our Lord has given us His own example many times. Everything we have in this world, except sin, is a blessing from God. When we sit down to eat we are sharing in the provision of His love, of His bountiful hand. To thank God for our food and to ask His blessing on it is both an obligation and a privilege.

Should a friend give you something, even something very trivial, you would certainly say, "Thank you." How much more should we thank God for that which he gives us.

In this connection let me suggest that many Christians compromise their witness by failing to thank God when they eat in restaurants and other public places. Why should we deny our faith in Him because we fear some people will think us peculiar? On the other hand such recognition of God in a public place can bear a witness which will help others.

Rally Monday

The Rev. Joseph M. Branch, pastor of the Davisboro Baptist Church, will speak Monday night at a meeting of the Metropolitan Association for Segregated Education.

The Rev. Mr. Branch, who has held four terms as chaplain of the state House of Representatives and served under Governors Ellis Arnall, E. D. Rivers and Herman Talmadge, will speak to the association and the public at the East Side Baptist Church at 8 p.m.

The association is made up of citizens who seek to keep the public schools open and segregated, and to form a workable system of private schools in the event the public schools are closed.

Patterson Talks
To Georgia State
Clinic Thursday

Eugene Patterson, vice president and executive editor of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., will discuss "Human Relation Aspects of Leadership" at the sixth annual leadership conference at Georgia State College next Thursday.

Patterson will speak at the banquet at 7:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge. He will be introduced by Dr. William Suttles, dean of students.

The leadership workshop will get under way at 5 p.m. in the student lounge with panel discussions and lectures. Dr. Kenneth M. England, dean of men, and Mrs. Nell H. Trotter, dean of women, will discuss "Atmosphere for Leadership."

Pipeline Injunction Halts Raceway Road Building

Atlanta International Raceway, which is getting its facilities ready for an opening race Nov. 22, has been temporarily restrained from constructing roadways over a pipeline company's lines.

Judge E. E. Andrews issued an order in Fulton Superior Court on behalf of Southeastern Pipeline Co., which claimed that construction of the roadway over the lines created an explosion hazard.

The firm also contended that construction of a roadway from U.S. 41 south of Atlanta to the track, and the paving of access roads to parking areas, would make it impossible to inspect and maintain 3,740 linear feet of pipelines in the area which transport gasoline and other petroleum products.

Judge Andrews scheduled a hearing at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 18 in the non-jury division of Superior Court for the raceway to show why a temporary injunction should not be issued.

Meanwhile, the order said, the raceway is restrained from constructing roads over or in the vicinity of the pipes or doing any work which would interfere with their maintenance or create a hazard of leakage.

The raceway is constructing grandstand facilities for 30,000 spectators. Its opening race is to have a $35,000 purse.

Mongolian to India

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Foreign Ministry announced Premier Yumzhagin Tsendenbal of Soviet satellite Outer Mongolia will visit India for a week starting Sept. 10.

Wreck of Secret Jet Identified

LONDON (AP)—A piece of aircraft wreckage found on a Welsh beach was identified Thursday as part of the new, secret Victor jet bomber which vanished on a test flight last Thursday.

Ministry of Supply experts said the wreckage definitely belonged to the plane, which presumably exploded.

An investigation is being made into the disaster. Five persons were aboard the big, crescent winged bomber used in Britain's nuclear striking force.

Medium-Price Car Makers Win Get Out at a Push in '60

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Some business trends, odds and ends:

So called medium-price-class cars are making a comeback this year, but it won't be until 1960, says Oldsmobile boss Jack F. Wolfman.

The General Motors vice president, who showed his new models here Thursday to BOP plant employees and 2,500 dealers and salesmen from 10 states, said this year's medium price class return is the first since 1955.

He pointed to 1959 gains of 16.6 per cent nationally, 18.5 per cent in the Southeast.

As for his forecast of further gains next year — he expects Olds sales to climb 13 per cent in 1960 — Wolfman says he's counting on continued economic growth "because, in a rising economy, more people will buy the more comfortable, superior, full-size automobiles."

Note too, however, that GM and other auto makers obviously don't expect fewer people to buy smaller cars.

Newnan Closing

American Thread Co. plans to halt operations at its 10-year-old Newnan spinning mill "sometime after the first of the year," but says it has prospective buyers and hopes to sell it as a going concern to some other textile firm.

Operations of the Newnan plant, now employing 215 workers, will be consolidated in other facilities to be improved over the next year at a cost of $3.5 million plus.

The company revealed Thursday that equipment improvements are slated for five of its plants, including its other two Georgia plants at Dalton and Tallapoosa. Both are larger than the Newnan mill.

A Near Record

July was a near record lending month for the 89 Georgia savings and loan associations that are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System.

They closed mortgage loans totaling $21,618,000. That was nearly $5 million over their July, 1958, volume, only $28,000 below last April—their biggest month ever.

But, in accordance with "the usual seasonal pattern" in Georgia, the month's new savings intake of $38,035,000 was more than offset by withdrawals of $41,156,000. Although smaller than the reduction a year ago, it compared with a net gain in savings for the 605 member associations located in the seven-state Southeastern district.

Steel Stocks

Georgians own over $35 million worth of stock in U.S. Steel, giant of its temporarily idled industry.

The company reports that, as of June 30, Georgia investors held $31,924 shares of its common stock (now quoted at around $105 a share) and 23,334 shares of its preferred (currently priced at $145 a share).

Irony of Thrift

It's not always easy to give credit where credit's due.

Take the word of Jim Blythe, the Fulton Bank installment loan officer whose many years of experience in the consumer lending field include a number spent at what is now the Chase Manhattan, the biggest city's biggest bank.

His problem came up the other day when a mature woman applied for a loan, but couldn't give no credit references "because my father taught me I shouldn't pay cash for anything I couldn't pay cash for. So until now, I've always paid cash for things."

Ironically, however, that thrifty habit didn't necessarily make her as good a credit risk as people who habitually borrow money and charge things—and so provide a record of how well they pay their debts. Nor did she have a bank account.

"You know," Blythe commented, "this is only the second application of this kind I've ever seen. It's hard to decide . . . But he did. And in her favor—on the grounds that as a registered nurse she would have a steady income."

Square Pea Quest

And have you heard that certain big business interests are plotting to corner the nation's pea market?

The National Canned Pea Council is searching for a modern Luther Burbank "who can develop a square pea to eliminate the problem of peas rolling off knife blades, and to facilitate the packing of peas more tightly in cans."

Says a Council spokesman: "We're on the level, and are foursquare behind the project."

Lockheed Wins AF Drone Pact

Lockheed's Georgia Division has received a $5 million contract to convert 12 B47 jet bombers into pilotless drone aircraft able to simulate Russian medium bombers.

To be converted at the Marietta plant, the six-engine planes will serve as targets to be missed by specified distances by defensive weapons, the Air Force said Thursday.

Two B47s previously converted to drones known as QB47s, are now being flight tested at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

The first of the new drones will be delivered to the air proving ground center at Eglin next spring.

The 100-ton, 600-mile-an-hour B47s initially cost about $1,900,000 each. They were built by Boeing Airplane Co., Wichita, Kan., and by Lockheed at the Marietta plant.

Cotton Closes 10 to 30 Off

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures weakened in late dealings as hedging and local selling increased. Final prices were 10 to 30 cents a bale lower.

Prior to the reaction the market was quiet and fairly steady on light mill and commission house buying.

Switching operations by traders from nearby October to later months developed.

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

Physiotherapy Natural Medicine

The word physiotherapy designates that form of treatment which uses various natural physical agents such as heat, light, exercise, electricity and water.

This form of medicine is used mostly for the rehabilitation of man from some disabling disease. Disease and wars take their toll in the loss of or disability in legs, arms, muscles and nerves, all of which are necessary for normal living. In addition we have diseases which, if not curbed early by physiotherapy, have a crippling or deformed effect upon the patient. Sometimes even prolonged bed rest also has the effect of producing helplessness unless physiotherapy is instituted to prevent it.

Physiotherapy together with rehabilitation and preventive physical measures constitute what is known as physical medicine. In which people are trained to be specialists. These doctors also must make careful tests to determine exactly what bone, muscle, or nerve is affected.

The forms of physiotherapy are numerous. They include heat, either to the surface of the body or by conduction to a certain area within the body. Massage and active exercises are also much used in physiotherapy. Active exercise is undoubtedly the best aid to circulation, which is one of the purposes of this form of therapy. Exercise should be prescribed by one who knows what muscles need strengthening and what exercises will do it. If done without that knowledge, exercises may harm instead of help.

Included in any rehabilitation program is therapy designed to keep the patient usefully occupied, in other words, occupational therapy. Now this form of treatment has two purposes: (1) To occupy and divert the mind of the patient and (2) to use occupation as a restorative agent in muscle regeneration, as for example, by teaching crafts to develop certain arm and hand muscles which have become disabled.

Training in learning to walk or in the use of crutches is also part of physiotherapy. The development and best use of whatever is left of the patients' capabilities may often make the difference between apathy with physical disability and a new outlook on life with restoration of independence.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♥	2♠
3♥	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

In today's hand one encounters the rare phenomenon of a three-card holding in dummy faced by a three-card holding in the closed hand which produces a ruffing value.

South became declarer at a game in hearts. North's bid of three hearts is not endorsed by this department. We prefer more disciplined raises when they come in the form of a free bid at the three level. It was fortunate that South exercised great moderation. Many a player would have driven as far as five before giving up and that would have been fatal. But South was content to make one display of glamor and then retire from the scene. He manifested the same degree of caution in the management of the dummy.

The king of spades was opened and taken by the ace, as East began a high low. Declarer led back the ten of spades won by West who continued with a third round of the suit. South saw that using dummy's ten of trumps to take care of the third round of spades would depend on finding West with the jack of trumps, not a favorable chance.

A reckoning of assets revealed that South had nine routine tricks. Five hearts, a spade, a diamond, and two clubs. The only source of a 10th trick is a ruff in dummy. Since East is very likely to overruff a spade, declarer decided to seek his 10th trick by ruffing a club in dummy. The stage for this play was set by discarding one of dummy's clubs on the third round of spades. Now, if declarer could find East with at least four clubs, the ruff of a club could be accomplished without danger.

West held the third round of spades as East threw a club, but there was nothing the defense could do to prevent declarer from ruffing a club for his 10th trick.

RHYME A DAY

REEVES

"Over seven hundred picnickers suddenly became violently ill after the feast."—News item.

This business of "having fun" . . . Is serious business. I think . . . Where people get out in the sun . . . And have too much to eat and drink . . . Somebody gets a stomach-ache . . . Or someone has an ankle sprained . . . Or someone falls into the lake . . . And isn't found until it's drained.

The flies, those uninvited guests . . . Zoom in and land upon the pies . . . And forty-seven other pests . . . Descend from the unclouded skies . . . Then, suddenly there is a cloud . . . And sheets of rain begin to fall . . . To drench the old folks in the crowd . . . And make the little fellows bayl.

If there's a shelter near at hand . . . There is no place where one can sit . . . And there the multitudes must stand . . . While waiting for the rain to quit . . . The babies wail, the kids complain . . . And some who were on pleasure bent . . . Are bending double with ptomaine . . . They got from poisoned nourishment.

Picnics could be delightful things . . . But always there is something wrong . . . The worst thing is, nobody brings . . . A nurse and ambulance along.

Your Stars Today

As it is characteristic of great stars to say much in few words, so it is of small stars to talk much, and say nothing. —Rochefoucauld.

Daily Guide—Plenty of talk and travel today. People will be on the move, rather noisy and somewhat erratic. The talk can be stimulating and the news surprising. Hunches pay off today, but don't let young people get out of hand. Many can change plans at last minute and there could be a great rush to be on the move. Naturally, one should take extra care in driving and discipline temptation to speed. In talking or writing, avoid sarcasm or outspoken criticism. Don't break away from conventions too drastically.

Happy birthday, Virgo! Action all this month could have put you 'way out in front, with possibly some publicity on your accomplishments. Start new projects and take the initiative, but do not talk about your plans or ideas first. You can do your talking next month, but now act on intuitive hunches. Some inner restlessness may have made you nervous, but some decision now can release some tensions. This fall domestic surroundings can be improved, with a chance to enjoy your friends and loved ones at home. Avoid emotional confusion around Nov. 21.

Self-Paying Truck Unit Is Proposed

The governor's Economy and Reorganization Committee has recommended legislation that would go a long way toward putting the Highway department's truck-weighting division on a financially self-supporting basis.

In an interim report, the committee called for two principal reforms in current legislation. Neither will become effective unless the General Assembly takes action upon them.

SHARE FINES

One of its proposals would enable the division to share in fines levied against violators of state truck weight laws. Such fines are now retained in counties in which they are imposed.

Another proposal would make it possible for the division to set up a fee system governing the issuance of special permits.

NO CHARGE FOR PERMITS

The committee said: "No charge is made for thousands of special and blanket permits processed and issued annually for overweight and oversize vehicles, whereas some 27 other states do make charges for such service."

Together, the two proposals, if enacted by the Legislature, would bring in about $300,000 a year, the committee said—enough to "enable this important control function to be self-supporting even on an expanded basis as effectiveness would seem to require."

DeKalb C. of C. Picks Administrative Aide

George W. Lawson of Louisville, Ky., has been appointed to fill the newly created post of administrative assistant for the DeKalb County Chamber of Commerce, General Manager Bill Broome has announced.

Lawson will begin his duties with the chamber staff Sept. 7. He is a 26-year-old native of Columbus, Ga., where he attended Graduate High School. He is a graduate of Auburn and served with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Lawton, branch manager of the Robbin and Carbon division of the Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. in Louisville, is married to the former Barbara Woodham of Albany.

Mother Seized As Shoplifter On Lenox Sq.

An Atlanta woman accompanied by two small daughters Thursday was arrested on charges of shoplifting, police said.

Mrs. Lucille Burns, 44, of 456 Hammond St., SW, was placed under $1,000 bond pending a hearing at 3:30 p.m. Friday in Municipal Court. Detectives E. H. Scott and B. F. Marler said.

Detectives said Mrs. Burns was taken into custody at the Lenox Square shopping area after a clerk reported she attempted to return a $179 coat for a refund. The clerk became suspicious because the coat was not properly wrapped, they said.

Detectives said they recovered items totaling approximately $800, including clothing for adults and children, cooking utensils, antiques, paint brushes and the like.

Ex-State Bookkeeper Faces New Check-Forging Counts

Additional charges of forgery were made by the State Law Department Thursday against a former bookkeeper in the State Parks Department.

Atty. Gen. Cook forwarded to Fulton County Sol. Gen. Paul Webb a statement by Mrs. Marjorie E. Murphy that she had forged the endorsement on four Parks Department checks amounting to $200.

Mrs. Murphy now is under indictment accusing her of payroll padding by issuing fictitious checks.

Prior to that, an audit by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher disclosed she had been paying her salary in advance by issuing checks and then altering the dates after they were returned from the bank. No action was taken against her at that time by then State Parks director Roy Chalker.

Mrs. Murphy was dismissed last year by former parks director J. W. Brinson Jr., when the payroll padding was disclosed.

In a statement to Robert Hall, head of the criminal division of the Law Department, Mrs. Murphy said of the four checks: "The issuance of these checks was a part of my over-all check-writing scheme which has been exposed earlier. These four checks were not mentioned in an earlier statement by me inasmuch as I had forgotten they had been written."

Atty. Gen. Cook said the payees on the checks are still employed by the Parks Department but that the investigation showed they had never seen or handled the checks and that one of them was 200 miles from Atlanta on the day one of the checks was issued in his name.

Health Unit Increases Its Budget

The Fulton County Health Board Thursday approved a 1960 budget request of $1,662,523, a $40,000 increase over this year.

Administrator John W. Lemon said most of the basic increase is for added utilities and maintenance costs anticipated for new quarters the health department will occupy in 1960.

Among these are the new Central Health Center to be completed in June, the West End Health Center to be ready in February, the Northeast Center, to be ready in July, the East Point Center to be ready next August, the Rockdale Center addition to be ready in June and a new parking deck to be ready in January.

$15,000 FOR PERSONNEL

Also included in the budget is $15,000 for additional personnel who will not be employed until the department moves into its new facilities. Dr. James F. Hackney, health commissioner, told the board.

Lemon said those employees are needed for the department's expanding health services which are geared to meet population growth.

Included in the budget for information purposes only was the $10,568 estimated additional cost of putting another rabies control team on the department payroll. The cost of the crew was presented because some board members, especially Dr. Thomas C. McPherson, were interested, Dr. Hackney said.

CHAIRMAN DIFFERS

But Hackney and Board Chairman Howard Dobbs said the department's stepped-up rabies control and dog pick-up program is working well. They said they saw no need at present for the additional crew.

"I've had less dog calls since the program started than I did before it started," Dobbs commented.

"People don't even stop me on the street about dogs anymore," added Board Member Paul D. West, who is Fulton County school superintendent.

2 Convicted For Slayings

GREENVILLE — Two persons were convicted of involuntary manslaughter Thursday in Meriwether Superior Court.

Nancy Hall, Negro, was charged with slaying Preston Rollins and was sentenced to six months in jail.

Eddie Joe Maires was convicted of slaying Richard Grier and was sentenced to not more or less than one year in jail.

Liberalized Emergency Relief in Fulton Could Cost $6 Million a Year, Ellis Says

Liberalization of emergency relief policies in Fulton County could increase welfare costs as much as $6,000,000 annually, Welfare Administrator Wellborn R. Ellis said Thursday.

Ellis explained that this much additional cost would be involved in providing one-month grants to persons now being denied assistance or to families of the estimated 8,000 unemployed persons in Fulton.

Ellis pointed out that the Welfare department is already spending at the rate of $810,000 monthly in county, state and federal funds to aid 20,000 persons. Liberalization of the emergency relief policies could cost $486,000 more per month, he said.

"It has been my experience that any time a person walks into our waiting room they feel they are in great need and theirs is an emergency case and that their friends and relatives think so, also," Ellis commented.

The administrator previously had told the county welfare board that emergency relief policies could be liberalized, but the additional costs involved could reach as much as $1,000,000, depending on just how much present policies were "liberalized."

It simply boils down to just what the public wants to pay taxes for, he added. Ellis said the last Fulton County grand jury warned that conditions indicate a trend toward a "welfare state," while others call for more aid.

Rains Continue Lashing Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—Torrential rains hit northern Japan Thursday, after taking a heavy toll in central Japan. At least 14 persons were reported dead and 86 missing in flooded areas of Ishikawa, Toyama, Shizuoka, Gifu and Iwate prefectures.

According to traditional drink recipe books, Gordon's Gin is the original base (and inspiration) of many of the world's classic gin drinks. Such is its subtle dry-

Battle of the Seasons

The sports seasons come . . . and they go. But often they collide. About this time of the year high school football, bowling and baseball meet in a fear-some rush—football and bowling coming, baseball going. Here's how it was on a sunny, mixed-up sports Thursday in Dallas, Douglasville, Atlanta and Detroit.

Dallas High School football coach Charles Millican mopped his fevered, sweat-beaten brow. "You know," he began with a country philosopher's sage beginning, "it won't be too long before teams visiting Dallas will have to pay the preacher."

Atkinson

And in that optimistic way Millican told how his Class B Tigers were readying for Georgia's first high school football game of 1959—a visit with Class AA Douglas County in Douglasville Friday night.

"Naturally, our boys are a little skiddish about playing a AA school," Millican continued. "But all they need to do is prove to themselves they can play football. They're capable—I believe that."

"Last year we lost to Douglas County, 35-0. This season I feel a lot better about the situation. We can field lettermen at every position except fullback. You called this time last year, remember?"

Well, then we had only one returning starter. Last season we played for experience; now we're playing for wins."

Another Charlie, Douglasville's Oakley, was predicting no good time for Douglas County. "It's a tossup the way I see it," he began. "With just two weeks of preparation I don't see how you can call the game any other way. We've had to spend most of our time on conditioning, little else. And how about this for football weather? Ninety-six degrees at 6:30 the other night. Wow!"

A visitor asked why the early start—all other state high schools wait another week or so. "It's good financially for both of us," he answered. "Little schools such as ours need the money, and we do have the stage all to ourselves, you might say. But we won't get off this early any more—our kids don't even start school until Monday and I understand it's the same in Dallas. It's difficult to get people to thinking football in this weather. But we'll be there . . . come heat or what have you."

—The Heat's On; Bowlers Don't Know It

The heat was in Atlanta, too. But a whole passel of people didn't mind. They were bowling in one of Atlanta's suddenly-multiplying air-conditioned bowling houses.

"Look at 'em," said one gleeful proprietor. "In a lot of places they have to close down for the summer. But not here in Atlanta. It's been amazing. Business has hardly slackened off. And we're looking for something really big this fall."

"The interest here in bowling apparently knows no season. Lot of these people are just finishing up their summer leagues. And most of 'em will go back to a fall league early in September."

Bob Bradley, the genial bowling equipment man, ambled up, briefcase in hand. "How about these figures?" he asked. "In 1954 there were 76 commercial alley beds in Atlanta. Right now we have 249 and by 1960 there'll be 387 in Greater Atlanta."

"And the tournaments are beginning to take notice of Atlanta. Of course, we had the Southeastern Bowling Congress in June, the National Knights of Columbus comes here in 1960 and the Southern in 1961. All we'll need after that is the ABC; that's not beyond the realm of immediate possibility. And the number of sanctioned bowlers, of course, has gone along, moving from 1,800 to around 3,500. Atlanta'll soon be big league in bowling."

—Harvey's a Kuenn Hit Artist

Baseball is sinking slowly in the Midwest. At Detroit the Tiger faithful will tell you it's already sunk—the Tigers are 15 games in arrears of the league-leading Chicago White Sox. But they'll also tell of outfielder Harvey Kuenn, a nearly-forgotten bat control artist who has dabbled a single here, a double there and a home run every now and then for a composite .354 batting picture that appears a cinch to head the American League.

"I think I can win the batting championship," Kuenn says in analytical fashion. "I haven't had a bad slump all season. Guess I've been lucky in that. The hits just seem to keep dropping in."

It wasn't always this way for Kuenn, a courageous ball player who never has received all the recognition due him because he's not a glamour hitter—in other words, he doesn't slug homers with the Rocky Colavitis, Al Kaline, Mickey Mantles and Harmon Killebrews. In fact, as recently as 1957, they were wondering whether Kuenn was going.

He hit a season-long slump. After a gaudy .332 average in 1956 Kuenn hit the banquet circuit. His weight went up; his batting average down. It plummeted to .277. He wasn't the shortstop he had been. . . . The base hits were oozing past him.

And to compound his miseries—at least, so Tiger brass told Kuenn he was now a center fielder. So he became one in the spring of '58. Apparently, he had succeeded. Because his batting average rose to .319, and he was capturing most of the fly balls hit his way.

Alas, again the Tigers told him he was wanting in center field. So they shunted him to right field early this season. It's in right field that he has at last found a home. Or if he hasn't, American League pitchers haven't been so informed.

And that's the Thursday sports Tale of Four Cities.

Williams: No Retirement For Me

CHICAGO (AP)—Ted Williams Thursday denied the latest report he is ready to retire.

The 40-year-old Boston Red Sox outfielder, who has won six American League hitting titles including ones in 1957 and 1958, came into Thursday's game batting only .236.

Williams, now in his 18th major league season, has not reached top condition this year because of a neck injury in the spring.

A Boston newspaper quoted Williams as telling a Chicago White Sox player before the game, "I've had it."

"I wouldn't say anything like that," Williams told an Associated Press reporter after the game.

"I've made up my mind what I'm going to do (about retirement), but I won't say now. I'll probably announce it through the Red Sox management."

"I probably won't say anything till the season's over."

CHISOX INVADE INDIANS FOR FIRST-PLACE SCRAP

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians will throw the best they have into a weekend struggle to wrest the American League lead from the Chicago White Sox.

Cal McLish

Jack Harshman

Whether the four-game series helps the runner up Indians in the league standings, it should give the box office a big boost. More than 60,000 persons are expected to pay their way into Municipal Stadium for the first game of the series tomorrow night, and the total for the four is expected to top 150,000.

So far this year, the Indians' best hasn't been enough against Chicago. In 14 games, the Sox have won nine.

Cleveland manager Joe Gordon is counting on pitchers Jack Harshman, Jim Perry, Cal McLish and Gary Bell to reverse that trend.

McLish is the only one of the four who has been effective against the White Sox. He has credit for three of Cleveland's five victories. Bell has a 0-2 record against the Sox, and Perry has appeared in five games but has not been the pitcher of record in any of them.

The southpaw Harshman has become a key man on the Tribe's pitching staff since the Indians bought him from Boston a few weeks ago. He has won three for the Indians, boosting his record to 5-9.

Bob Shaw (13-4) is Chicago manager Al Lopez' choice to open the series tomorrow night against Harshman, a former Chicago ace. Shaw is 0-0 against the Indians.

Cards Rally To Win, 5-4

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ken Boyer drove in four runs and Joe Cunningham celebrated his 28th birthday with four hits Thursday to spark the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-4 comeback victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

Despite the setback, the third-place Braves crept within 3½ games of the league-leading Giants, who lost a doubleheader at Philadelphia, 7-2 and 2-1. Idle Los Angeles drew within two games of San Francisco.

Cunningham opened the eighth with a long triple off Don McMahon and slid home on Boyer's sacrifice fly to break a 4-4 tie. It was Boyer's first sacrifice fly of the season.

The Cardinals gathered 17 hits, five for extra bases.

The Cardinal outfielder climbed to .349. Aaron, who had one hit in four tries, tumbled to .357.

The winner was Lindy McDaniel.

Pilot Rigney Fumes As Phils Clip Leaders

Weary Giants Fall, 7-2, 2-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A tired, bedraggled looking band of Giants were jolted twice Thursday by the last place Philadelphia Phillies, slicing the San Francisco lead in the National League to two games over idle Los Angeles. The scores were 7-2 and 2-1.

Manager Bill Rigney of the Giants was an angry man in the losers' clubhouse after the doubleheader. He lashed at National League President Warren Giles for forcing the Giants to play a pair Thursday after a game Wednesday night in Pittsburgh.

The Giants arrived in Philadelphia at 2:30 a.m. EDT, and were at the ball park at 11 a.m. for pre-game practice. They played at times like a team in a trance, waving at balls the defense usually eats up, and running bases like sleepwalkers.

"You'd think we were a last place club or something, the consideration we were given in rescheduling this rained out doubleheader. We looked dead," Rigney growled.

The usually punchless Phillies, who ended a six-game losing streak as the Giants dropped their third straight, broke out in a rash of extra base and timely hits in helping Jim Owens (10-11)

In that game, young Cardwell, fast becoming one of the better National League right-hand pitchers, limited San Francisco to five hits, striking out five before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. He got all the runs he needed in the first inning on a walk to Solly Drake, Koppe's single, a sacrifice fly, a ground out and Wally Post's run-scoring single, a off starter and loser Al Worthington (2-3).

Unearned Runs Help Barons Hold Hex Over Rippelmeyer

Crackers Get the Boot, 6-2; Return to Poncey with Vols

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Constitution Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Birmingham's two-year jinx over Atlanta's top pitcher held firm Thursday night as Ray Rippelmeyer, victimized for four unearned runs, was beaten by the Barons for the fourth time, 6-2.

The big right-hander, who has tamed every club in the Southern Assn. except the Barons, negotiated the full route for the 19th time in 23 outings, yet couldn't shake the Slagtown hex.

Rippelmeyer lost this one the way he did most of his other 12 defeats—he's won 11—with no substantial defensive help.

He kept 834 Rickwood Park fans on uneasy seats as he let the Barons down with eight safe blows, walked only one and struck out seven.

But the Crackers made little use of their nine safeties off Wynn Carey (14-9), and the little left-hander downed them for the fourth time, tying Mobile's Wynn Hawkins for most number of triumphs over the cellar-dwellers.

But a single by Jay Cooke and Bob Micelotta's ninth home run, a shot over the left-field fence, put Skeeter Newsome's crowd ahead at 2-1 in the bottom half of the inning.

Three Baron runs in the sixth and another in the seventh were unearned, the products of two errors by shortstop Poochie Hartsfield and one by Rippelmeyer himself. George Thomas' seventh round tripper accounted for two tallies in the seventh but came Carey, shooting for his eighth shutout of the year, was tagged for the last Cracker tally in the eighth. A walk to Em Lindbeck, playing his last game before reporting to Louisville, single by Guy Morton and Chuck Coles' double off the center-field fence did the damage.

Thus did the Crackers finish a poor 1-9 at Rickwood for the season.

Limping back into Atlanta with 9 losses in their last 10 games after winning 9 of 13, the Crackers will open a series against Nashville Friday. Dale Hendrickson (4-9) will hurl the Ladies Night game.

CRACKER CRUMBS — Some lucky youngsters will win a pony at Ponce de Leon Park Saturday night when the Crackers meet the Nashville Vols. Special tickets for children have been purchased by business concerns and distributed free for four weeks, and every youngster entering the park is assured of having a ticket for the post-game drawing. A crowd of 10,000 or more is hoped for.

FLAG-BOUND COLONELS BUY CRAX' LINDBECK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Em Lindbeck, Atlanta's lone contender for Southern Assn. Rookie of the Year honors, was sold to Louisville of the American Assn. Thursday.

Jasper Donaldson, vice president and general manager of the Crackers, made the announcement and said that the young right fielder would report to Ben Geraghty's Colonels immediately.

"Lynn Stone (Louisville general manager) called and said they have some injured players and desperately need an outfielder to help them in their tight battle for the pennant," said Donaldson.

"They wanted Lindbeck, and since we are out of the pennant race we let them have him. It's a good break for him, of course."

Lindbeck was among league-leading hitters much of the season, averaging in the middle .300s until late June and being selected to the mid-season All-Star team. He's currently batting .283 and has 17 home runs.—ROBERTS

Davis Cup Pressure's on MacKay

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—The spotlight is on Peruvian Alex Olmedo but the pressure lies with big, free-swinging Barry MacKay when the United States opens defense of the Davis Cup Friday against always formidable Australia.

With the series rated a tossup, it's figured at least one victory must come off MacKay's booming racket if the international trophy is to remain in this country.

The impassive Inca, Olmedo, plays Australia's No. 1 star, Neale Fraser, in the opening match at 1 p.m. EST. MacKay faces the 21-year-old Rod Laver in the followup at the West Side Tennis Club. Both Australians are left-handers.

The first day's program will not be televised. Saturday's doubles match will be televised locally in New York by NBC, starting at 1:30 p.m., EST.

The final singles Sunday—Olmedo vs. Laver and MacKay vs. Fraser—will be shown on home screens, starting between 1:30 and 2 p.m., EST.

As the poised court killer who won the Cup almost single-handedly in Brisbane last year and later captured the Australian and Wimbledon championships, Olmedo is favored to win both his singles assignments.

Australia, famed for a long line of fine doubles combinations, is the choice in the tandem event Saturday when its Wimbledon and U.S. champions, Fraser and Roy Emerson, will be arrayed against Olmedo and 18-year-old Earl Buchholz Jr. of St. Louis.

This means, if play follows form, Uncle Sam must depend on MacKay for his clinching point and Australia must beat the 6-foot-4 Dayton, Ohio, slugger twice to recover the bowl.

MacKay, a 23-year-old Air Force private, is aware of his position and, instead of being uneasy, revels in it.

"I've just lived for the day I could redeem my two losses in the challenge round last year," he said. "I'm playing the best tennis of my life. I am confident I can win my two matches and even go on to win the national singles later."

"I'm loose as a goose. What have I to lose? If I'm beaten, I'm still just a bum anyway."

Since mid-July the towering midwesterner, who never plays a cautious shot, has been almost unbeatable. He whipped a strong field at Merion, Pa., and then won the Air Force and Inter-Service tournaments without loss of a set.

He thrives on left-handers. He beat three, including Fraser, at Wimbledon before dropping an 87-game marathon to Laver in the semifinals. Olmedo and Fraser are 2-2 in their personal meetings.

Fraser, a Cup veteran of 25, has been playing like a demon in practice while Olmedo has shown little of his phenomenal touch. But, renowned as a big match player, the young Peruvian has assured U.S. Captain Perry Jones: "Don't worry, Cap, I beat them both."

The weather outlook is for overcast skies and sweltering temperatures. Physical condition may be a determining factor.

Basilio's Tabbed 7-5 Pick To Stop Fullmer at Frisco

Middleweight Title on Line

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two brawling bellies who have worn the world middleweight crown will battle Friday night to regain a big share of the world title.

Carmen Basilio, the craggy faced warrior from Chittanooga, N.Y., and Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, tangle for 15 rounds or less at the Cow Palace.

The winner gets the National Boxing Assn. blessing as titlist of the 160-pound division, a spot declared vacant last May 4 when the ruling body withdrew the championship from Sugar Ray Robinson for not defending it.

Robinson hadn't fought since winning the title from Basilio in a bloody battle March 25, 1953.

The year before, Fullmer had won and lost in a pair with Sugar Ray. Although the NBA stripped Robinson of his laurels, he's still recognized as champ in New York and Massachusetts.

A gate of $200,000 was expected with another $175,000 from NBC television for the 9 p.m., EST, bout.

Basilio should get about $140,000 as his share with the Utah strongboy expected to grab more than $100,000.

The $175,000 television money represents the highest amount paid for a home video boxing show except for a heavyweight title bout. Promoter Norman Rothschild of Syracuse, N.Y., estimated 60 million would watch the TV production.

Basilio declared he aims to become the second man ever to knock out Fullmer, who has won 49 fights and lost 4. Fullmer stopped 21 foes and only Robinson ever stopped him.

Basilio, who held the welterweight crown before stepping up a notch, has gone into the pro ring 74 times, won 54, lost 13 and fought seven draws. He has knocked out 27 and never been stopped.

"I believe," said Fullmer, "that this fight will be decided in the last five rounds and I expect my weight edge to give me the advantage."

He'll probably weigh eight pounds more than Carmen. Manager Mary Jensen expects the Utah fighter to scale 159½ at the 10 a.m. weigh-in and put on three more pounds with a meal after that.

"I like to fight the bigger fellows," says Basilio who'll weigh between 153 and 155. "They provide a better target."

Carmen probably will enter the fight a slight favorite but the quoted odds have been fluctuating. They opened even, then swung as much as 2-1 in favor of Basilio and came back to about 7-5.

Amateur Skiers Hit Cason Today

Special to The Constitution
PINE MOUNTAIN — Amateur water skiers from six Southern states will meet on the waters of Robin Lake at Ida Cason Callaway Gardens Friday and Saturday for the Georgia Open Amateur Water Ski Tournament.

The tournament was conceived by Howard Callaway, Gardens director. Callaway has played host to three tournaments—the Nationals, Southeast Regionals and a Callaway Gardens Invitational.

Tournament site is the same as that used during the 1958 Nationals. Jump ramp, slalom and trick courses are identical.

Judging the tournament will be Mrs. Leah Marie Atkins of Auburn, Ala., a past National women's champ, and Callaway, a member of the National Water Ski Assn.

The amateur event, first of its kind ever held in Georgia, will provide experience and instruction in tournament skiing and is designed especially for the contestants.

Some 80 skiers have entered the event, which gets under way on Friday with the Boys' and Women's Division slalom, trick-riding and jumping. The men will compete in the same events on Saturday.

Who Hurlled First?
DUBLIN (UPI) — Any loyal Irishman will insist that the rugged game of hurling was invented in Ireland but the game actually is believed to have been played by Egyptians during the reign of Rameses II.

CARSON'S PRO REPORT

BIG RAM SCALP PUT WHOOPEE BACK IN BEATEN REDSKINS

By JOHNNY CARSON

Former Georgia All-America and Washington Redskins End WASHINGTON—The return trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles is approximately 500 miles. It seemed like it took 12 hours to fly back. The trip from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C., is about 3,000 miles. It seemed only a couple of hours in the air. You say this Carson's nuts. The difference is this:

Johnny Carson

a pass play he dreamed up in the huddle with only 15 seconds left to play.

Losing that way, especially after thinking we had it won, on the plane back to Los Angeles we were sad, downhearted, and quiet. We really wanted to win the first one for our new head coach Mike Nixon. The hours on the plane back were slow and aching ones.

After beating the high-powered, star-studded, Los Angeles Rams, 23-21, the 3,000-mile plane ride from Los Angeles to Washington passed fast with jokes and laughter the whole way.

The crowd of 85,888 thought they were witnessing the impossible when the Redskins were leading 16-14 at halftime, but they felt that Olie Matson, Jon Arnett and the rest of the Ram offense would begin to roll in the last half. The Redskin defense stiffened and only allowed the Rams one touchdown in the second half. Although the score was close, the game wasn't. The Rams only gained 299 yards passing and running, while we gained 471 yards combined.

Johnny Olszewski, who scored twice on short plunges, had a good night ramming the Rams. He ran 21 times for 88 yards.

The other touchdown was a most deserving one. Dick James scored on a short pass from Eddie LeBaron. James, the star of the game, had a terrific night. He caught three passes, ran for 102 yards, and in the last half played defensive halfback making many fine tackles. While I'm passing out the praises, I must say that the offensive line—Jim Schrader, Don Boll, Red Stephens, Will Renfro, Ray Lemek, Joe Wallon, and Bib Anderson—turned in one of its finest jobs.

Anytime the Redskins score, the man behind the score, as always, is Eddie LeBaron. LeBaron had a fine night throwing, he completed 15 of 23 for 264 yards.

A fellow that must be mentioned is linebacker Ralph Felton, who made too many tackles to count and tackled Jon Arnett in the end zone for a two-point safety, which was the margin of victory.

Presenting new head coach Mike Nixon his first professional win; we carried him off the field on our shoulders. Talking to the coach in the dressing room he said, "I felt so thrilled by the tribute, I could have cried, but then I couldn't let the boys know what a sissy I am, could I?"

This week we take on Johnny Unitas and his high-flying Baltimore Colts in Baltimore. Then we head South to the "promised land."

Latman, Romano Punch

Sherm Lollar a rest before Chicago's important four-game series in Cleveland beginning Friday night, drove in Chicago's first two runs in the third inning.

With two out, Nelson Fox and Jim Landis singled. Then Romano drove a single deep into left field, scoring Fox from second and Landis all the way from first.

Ted Kluszewski, newly acquired former National League slugger starting his first game for Chicago at first base, grounded out to end the inning.

The White Sox added their final two runs in the eighth inning—to the delight of a crowd of 24,879, including 9,193 screaming female fans taking advantage of ladies day, on an infield grounder by Billy Goodman and a triple to deep center by Jim McNamany.

Jenkins: Outlook's Bright for Smithies

Good Speed, Weight, Ability But Lack of Depth Hurts

By PAUL ATKINSON

That football tune Smith's High School Smithies are hammering out these days is no sad song. In fact, it could easily be, "There's a Great Day Coming Sept. 12."

If that ole debbil injury will stay away from Smith High School's doorstep, Donald (Chub) Jenkins forecasts a bright, bright future, considerably more hopeful than a 1-9 1958 report would dictate.

I'll stack my first 11 men against any 11 in the city," Jenkins said, not unmodestly, Thursday, "We've got good weight, good speed and an awful lot of ability."

Scores in parentheses indicate scores of last year's games, if any.

"I've been at Smith High School five years, and this is the best bunch of boys I've seen in that time. They want to play football."

Who are these young men, who with a few smiles from Dame Fortune, could turn into 3-AAA's surprise surprises?

"At the ends are Steve Mullis (155) and Richard Comer (155); tackles are Billy Collins (190) and Ev Moon (190); guards, Lou Lazenby (205) and Roy Mitchell (185); center, Claude Esgeve (185); and in the backfield are quarterback Larry Williams (155), halfbacks Johnny Tibbetts (175), Cecil Oakes (175) and John Martin (175) and fullback Joe Thompson (150). Of that group, only Moon, a junior, is a non-letterman.

"We're not fooling ourselves that we'll be a world-beater. A championship club has to have depth. We don't have it. But I'll guarantee some of our opponents are going to have an interesting evening of it."

With Jenkins in as head coach replacing the departed Lloyd Kimmel, a new system has been installed. "We're split-T all the way now," Jenkins explained.

1959 SMITH HIGH SCHOOL ROSTER
TACKLES—Billy Collins (190), Ev Moon (190), Raymond Waters (170), Ted Ellis (170), Jesse Aaron (185).
GUARDS—Louis Lazenby (205), Roy Mitchell (185), Jerry McKenzie (220), Kenneth New (195).
CENTERS—Claude Esgeve (185), Harold Paden (155), Jimmy Sykes (145).
BACKS—Larry Williams (155), Zeki Martin (145), Johnny Tibbetts (175), Cecil Oakes (175), John Martin (175), Joe Thompson (150), L. D. Gibbs (130), Ronnie Popbam (118), Jerry Bafford (140), Tommy Carr (135), Phil Mason (140).

"You know it really worked out well for us that our first game isn't until Sept. 12 with Southwest. It gives us more time to work on getting our timing and plays down."

"Williams has done a swell job at quarterback. And Tibbetts gives us a break-away threat at a halfback. In fact, our boys in the backfield could just about make anyone's backfield in town. There's good speed in the backfield, but what worries us is that none of the kids have played defense."

"So that means it'll be up to the line. Last year the line finished strong and I have no reason to believe that it won't carry on. Lazenby and Mitchell give us some beef in that middle at guard; Collins and Moon are large at tackle; Esgeve's an excellent center; and the ends, Mullis and Comer, are fine receivers and defenders."

A visitor asked him for his "team to beat" in 3-AAA East. "Murphy appears to be best," Jenkins replied. "And North Fulton also will be up there."

Smith? Well, it would seem that the Smithies, too, won't sing quite as many sad songs as before. No injuries to speak of, and Smith could gallop in as the eastern darkhorse.

$12.95 TIRES ARE NOT FOR TURNPIKES

READ THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY!

- High speed driving on super highways demands stronger, safer tires than anyone can sell for $12.95.
- B.F. Goodrich makes economy tires that give outstanding service. But they're designed for normal city and country driving, not for long periods at sustained high speeds on turnpikes, throughways and freeways.
- "Testing" a low-price tire on a turnpike doesn't necessarily make it safe for day-in, day-out performance under bruising, pounding conditions.
- Turnpike tires call for the strongest materials, toughest plies, painstaking design and construction. Raking life and property on anything less is sheer folly. High-speed tires can't be built for $12.95.

To Be a Famous Hostess Mold and Shape the Recipes

By VIRGINIA DYSARD KEZIAH
 Constitution Food Editor

Want to be famous for a specialty? For the cook with good common sense the job is easy. First find a recipe that combines some of the flavors you are looking for and then mold and shape it until it is your own. When you're through you may not recognize it as the original recipe, but diners will recognize it as "terrific."

Summer entrees are often cold but almost everyone wants a hot meal at least once a day. For example, chicken livers in a bed of cracked wheat are a delicious main course as it is but for the imaginative cook it can be only the base of a personal dish.

PAELLA

1 3-lb. broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
 1 1/2 tsp. salt, divided
 1/2 tsp. paprika
 4 tbsp. cooking oil or butter
 1 lb. ham, diced
 1 medium onion, chopped
 1 cup diced green pepper
 1 can (1 pound) peas
 1 12-ounce bottle or can beer
 Water
 1/2 tsp. Tabasco
 2 bouillon cubes
 1/4 tsp. saffron
 1 1/2 cups raw rice
 4 mussels
 4 clams
 1 lb. shrimp, cooked and cleaned
 2 pimientos, cut in pieces
 Sprinkle chicken with 1 teaspoon of the salt and paprika. Heat oil in skillet and brown chicken; remove to baking dish with tight-fitting lid. Cook ham in skillet; add to chicken. Cook onion and green pepper until onion is tender, but not brown. Drain liquid from peas and add to beer. Measure; add enough water to make 3 cups. Add Tabasco. Stir liquid into skillet, scraping brown particles from bottom of pan; add bouillon cubes, saffron and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt. Bring to a boil; pour over chicken and ham. Sprinkle rice over chicken; stir so all of rice is moistened. Cover tightly. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 minutes. Uncover; toss rice. Arrange mussels and clams on top of rice with shrimp, pimientos and peas. Cover; return to oven 10 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN LIVERS AND PILAF

2 tbsp. butter
 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
 1 pkz. seasoned wheat pilaf
 2 cups chicken broth or bouillon
 1 lb. (about 9) chicken livers
 1 cup flour (about)
 2 tbsp. butter
 Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Add onion and saute until onion is tender, but not browned. Stir in pilaf, seasonings from both envelopes (in the package of pilaf), and the broth. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat. Then cover, remove from heat, and let stand 8 minutes.

Meanwhile, cut each chicken liver in half and roll lightly in the flour. Sauté livers in remaining 2 tablespoons butter about 5 minutes, turning to brown.

Fluff pilaf with a fork. Lightly spoon into a warmed serving dish. Top with chicken livers. Garnish with parsley, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

NOTE: One cup sour cream may be added to the sautéed chicken livers, if desired.

SCAMPI BUON APPETITO—AS A FIRST COURSE

For 4, get about 2 pounds of the large shrimp. Wash, then split the backs of the raw, unshelled shrimp lengthwise. Leave fins and tail intact and don't cut all the way through. Remove dark vein, if any. Make the following marinade. Mix together—

 1 tbsp. wine vinegar
 2 tbsp. tomato paste
 1/4 cup sherry (optional)
 1/4 tsp. garlic powder
 1 tsp. each minced onion and parsley flakes
 1/2 tsp. Italian seasoning
 Dash each of black pepper and red pepper and cayenne

Bring marinade to a boil, simmer a moment, then pour over split shrimp and let marinate 30 minutes or up to 2 hours if time permits.

When ready to cook, divide the shrimp among individual casseroles. Flatten the split part, flesh side up, and leave the tail end standing. Spoon remaining sauce over shrimp. Bake in a 400-degree oven about 8-10 minutes. Serve in the casseroles.

AS A MAIN COURSE

For 4, get about 4 pounds shrimp. Drop into boiling salted water to cover, using 1 tablespoon salt per 1 quart water. Add 2 tablespoons Italian seasoning. Simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Drain; shell and devein. Add to marinade sauce (double recipe for 4 pounds shrimp). Toss and let marinate. Heat before serving. Excellent with white, brown or wild rice.

FRANK-STUFFED CABBAGE LEAVES

 8 frankfurters
 2 tbsp. butter or margarine
 2 tbsp. flour
 1 tsp. salt
 1/4 tsp. pepper
 1 1/2 cups milk
 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
 2 tbsp. lemon juice
 1 tsp. dry mustard
 1 tsp. dried onion flakes
 1/4 cup grated, sharp American cheese

Separate outer leaves of cabbage and parboil eight leaves until barely tender. Drain; fold each leaf in half and roll around frank, placing seam side down in a shallow baking dish. Melt butter; blend in flour, salt and pepper. Remove from heat, stir in milk. Return to heat and stir constantly until thickened. Add remaining ingredients and continue stirring until cheese is melted. Pour over cabbage rolls. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

The Color Makes the Difference

What is white pepper? What makes it different from black pepper, besides color? When your quiz chance comes to win a set of dinner dishes explaining the difference between the two, would you make the grade?

Don't let anyone panic you into saying these two great spices come from different vines. Both are piper nigrum berries, growing under the equatorial sun of far-off places like Sarawak, on the island of Borneo; Malaya or Muntok, in Java. The subtle differences in these two peppers are due to processing.

White pepper is actually black pepper which has been decorticated or hulled, its black outer covering removed. This makes it a pungent white spice which looks well in creamy sauces, egg dishes, mashed potatoes, mayonnaise and other delicately colored main dishes.

The extra processing in white pepper was one of the reasons why ancient Roman spice merchants got 7 denarii per pound for white pepper while black pepper cost a more modest 4 denarii.

There's a flavor difference, too. Piper nigrum berries don't all ripen at once. Those intended for black pepper are picked before fully ripe. The berries to be hulled and used as white pepper are given a few more days on the vine. Then they're piled in heaps to encourage fermentation, whereas the black pepper berries are spread out to speed up drying.

A SIMPLE BUT DELECTABLE SAUCE FOR MEATS
Sour Cream Forms the Base of this Sauce Along With Spices

Hulling is done by hand labor or by machine. Native women in Sarawak, one of the most famous white pepper producing areas, soak the berries in pools of water, then rub off the hulls by hand. In the spice trade the hand hulled product is referred to merely as white pepper whereas machine hulled pepper is usually called decorticated pepper.

There's no real reason to say "eenie-meenie-minie-mo," trying to decide whether to buy black or white pepper. You need both, especially when you try these dishes. All achieve distinction with a dash of white pepper.

HORSERADISH SAUCE
1/2 cup sour cream
4 to 5 tbsps. prepared horseradish
1/2 tsp. salt
1/16 tsp. ground white pepper
Paprika
Combine sour cream, horseradish, salt and white pepper. Serve with ham, roast beef or fish. Garnish with paprika. Makes 1/2 cup.

CREAM OF FRESH CORN SOUP
2 cups fresh corn, cut off the cob
2 cups chicken stock*
1 tbsps. flour
3 tbsps. butter or margarine, melted
3 cups milk
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. ground white pepper
3/4 tsp. garlic powder
Spiced Croutons
Cook corn and onion in chicken stock 5 minutes or until tender. Blend flour with butter or margarine. Stir in milk. Cook until slightly thick, 5 minutes. Add cooked corn and salt, white pepper and garlic powder. Garnish each serving with a thin slice fresh lime or lemon. Serve with spiced croutons. Makes 6 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

*If chicken stock is not available, substitute 2 chicken bouillon cubes and 2 cups boiling water.

SPICED CROUTONS
2 slices bread
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 to 1/4 tsp. curry powder or 1/4 tsp. chili powder
Trim crust from bread and cut bread into cubes. Melt butter and blend in spice. Add croutons and mix lightly until all butter is absorbed. Place on cookie sheet and brown in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes. Serve sprinkled over soup. Makes 6 servings.

ARMENIAN RICE SOUP
1 cucumber, peeled and diced
2 lg. lettuce leaves, shredded
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
1/2 cup flour
5 cups lamb or mutton stock*
1 cup cooked rice
1 tsp. salt or salt to taste
1/4 tsp. ground white pepper
1 tbsps. instant minced onion
1/2 tsp. garlic powder
1 tsp. fresh lime or lemon juice
Paprika
Sauté cucumber and lettuce in butter or margarine about 10 minutes. Blend in flour. Gradually stir in lamb or mutton stock. Add rice, salt, ground white pepper, instant minced onion or lemon juice. Cook until slightly thick, stirring frequently. Serve hot. Garnish with paprika. Makes 6 cups.

*Lamb or mutton stock: Slowly cook 2 pounds neck of lamb in 6 cups water, 2 ribs celery, 1 bay leaf and 2 teaspoons salt.

CUCUMBER DRESSING
1 cup finely diced peeled cucumbers
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbsps. cider vinegar
1/4 tsp. ground white pepper
1/16 tsp. salt
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Combine cucumbers, sugar, vinegar, white pepper and salt. Fold into whipped cream. Serve with fish, chicken or meat salads. Makes 2 1/2 cups.

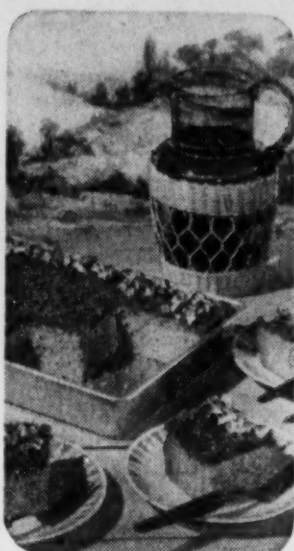

Outdoor Meal Calls for Dessert No Matter What the Entree Is Whether the outdoor meal is eaten on the porch or terrace, or beside a cool flowing stream, the dessert is an important part of it.

Though, of course, the dessert for an outdoor meal must of necessity forego some of the frills that a dessert served in the dining room may have, it need not sacrifice any of its satisfaction or appeal. Take, for example, this sugar maple cake with its baked-on applesauce-nut topping. The rich crunchy topping looks good and tastes even better because of its affinity for the tender, moist maple flavor of the cake.

This is an entirely new cake made from an exciting new cake mix. But for all its eye and flavor appeal is easy to make. One package of the new sugar maple cake mix is prepared by directions on box and baked in an oblong 13x9x2-inch pan.

A few minutes before the cake is done the topping is spread over it, and the cake is returned to the oven. The cake, if taken to a picnic site can be carried right in the baking pan and cut in squares for serving. Some fresh fruit for out of hand eating may be served with it, or just hot or iced tea or coffee.

BAKED ON TOPPING
Maple Sugar Cake

Spread topping lightly over cake in pan. Sprinkle with nuts. Return to oven and bake 5 minutes. Serve warm.

NOTE: To reheat cake, heat in moderate oven (350 degrees) 10 minutes.

Jaded appetites and jaded budgets will disappear when tender yet crunchy plum dumplings, swimming in bright red sauce, are the dessert of the evening. We're right in the middle of the largest plum crop in history, and both the quality and price do wonderful things for our disposition.

PLUM DUMPLINGS
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 lb. (8-10) fresh plums, sliced
2 cups bite-size shredded rice
Biscuits crushed to 1/2 cup
1 tbsps. sugar
3/4 cup soft butter or margarine
Pastry for 2-crust pie
2 tbsps. lemon juice
1 tbsps. cornstarch
Combine 1 1/4 cups sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle plums with 1/4 cup. Let stand until 3/4-1 cup syrup forms. Stir occasionally. Drain. Save syrup. Heat oven to hot (400 degrees). Butter a 9x16-inch baking dish. Blend cereal crumbs, 1 tablespoon sugar and butter. Prepare pastry, substituting lemon juice for 2 teaspoons water. Blend in crumbs by kneading or folding and rolling until evenly distributed. Divide pastry in half. Roll each into a 5x15-inch rectangle. Cut into 5-inch squares. Mix plums with remaining sugar-cinnamon mixture. Place 1/2 cup plums in center of pastry squares. Moistened edges. Fold corners to center. Press edges together. Bake 25 minutes or until browned. Make sauce by combining cornstarch with 1/4 cup syrup. Add remaining syrup and enough water to make 1 1/2 cups. Heat to boiling. Stir constantly. Serve over dumplings. Makes 6 servings.

More Popular Dishes From Italian Cuisine

Dishes of the Italian cuisine are becoming more and more popular by the day. And topping the list of favorites are spaghetti, noodle and macaroni dishes. There's no end to the possible combinations, plain or fancy, of sauces and types of macaroni products—fish, meat, poultry, vegetables and cheese all team up with macaroni, spaghetti or noodles to make attractive and delicious dining.

Probably one of the most popular types of Italian spaghetti sauces is a plain tomato sauce combined with one or more vegetables. For a delicious example, try spaghetti with zucchini sauce. If zucchini squash is not available in your market, yellow summer squash makes a perfect stand-in.

Spinach is another good vegetable to serve in a sauce over spaghetti, try this recipe that combines cream cheese, onion and spinach in the sauce.

SPAGHETTI WITH ZUCCHINI SAUCE

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup finely diced onion
1/2 cup finely diced green pepper
1 lb. zucchini squash, sliced
2 cups diced fresh tomatoes
1 tspn. salt
1/2 tspn. pepper
1 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
1 tblsp. salt
3 qts. boiling water
8 ounces spaghetti

Melt butter or margarine over low heat; add onions and saute 2 minutes. Add green pepper, squash, tomatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper and undrained mushrooms. Cover and cook over low heat about 40 minutes.

Meanwhile, add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Serve hot zucchini sauce over spaghetti. Sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes 4-6 servings.

CREAMY SPINACH SPAGHETTI

1 3-ounce pkg. cream cheese
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 10-ounce pkg. frozen chopped spinach, cooked
1 tblsp. salt
3 qts. boiling water
8 ounces spaghetti

Soften cream cheese and blend with milk. Add cream cheese mixture and onion to cooked, undrained spinach; mix well.

Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Add spinach mixture to spaghetti; mix well and heat to serving temperature. Makes 4-6 servings.

Bring on Hash

When the thermometer plainly indicates it's time to get out the red flannels for outer warmth, we get a yen for red flannel hash for inner comfort.

It didn't just happen that New England grew up on this colorful concoction.

HASH FOR HEAT

6 medium beets, cooked
1 cup chopped cabbage
2 carrots, cut up
1 or 2 slices of turnip
Salt and pepper

Some like to grind up the vegetables; others prefer to chop coarsely in a wooden chopping tray.

Place two tablespoons of fat in a heavy frying pan, add the ingredients, and moisten with a little hot water. Season to taste.

Cover the pan. Let the hash steam slowly on low heat until it is warmed through well. Then take off the cover, turn the hash once and let it brown for a few minutes. Serves four.

This hash will carry you "quite a ways."

HOW TO USE UP LEFTOVER MASHED IDAHO

For Breakfast: Shape cold mashed potatoes into patties. Dip in flour or press both sides of patties into crushed corn flakes. Brown slowly in hot butter, turning once. Good with broiled ham, applesauce, and hot biscuits with honey.

For Luncheon: Make lengthwise slits in frankfurters. Fill slits with cold mashed potatoes. Wrap each frank spiral-fashion with a strip of bacon, fastening each end with a wood pick. Broil until bacon is crisp or bake in hot oven. Good with cabbage salads.

For Dinner: Divide about 2 cups cold mashed potatoes in 6 equal parts. Shape each in rectangle. Put a fairly thick strip of Cheddar Cheese in middle of each. Mold potatoes into a roll, being careful to keep cheese in center. Roll each "log" in flour, then in slightly beaten egg mixed with 1 tablespoon water, then into fine dry bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat at 360 degrees about 3 minutes or until golden brown on outside. Drain on paper toweling. The insides will be rich with melted cheese.

Warm Weather Fare at Best

Salmon poached and chilled in white dinner wine with a light touch of an herb such as dill, rosemary or savory is warm weather fare at its best. Serve the delicate fish with water-cress, mayonnaise, crisp bread sticks and glasses of chilled wine.

TURKEY-RICE SCRAPPLE

3 cups water
1 tsp. minced onion
2 tspn. salt
1 cup quick-cooking rice cereal
1/4 tsp. mace

2 cups diced cooked turkey
1/4 to 1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup salad oil

Place water, onion and salt in saucepan and bring to a boil. Sprinkle in cereal so boiling does not stop. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Cover and let stand in warm place 10 minutes. Stir in mace and diced turkey. Pour into slightly oiled loaf pan (8 by 4 by 2 1/2 inches). Chill overnight. Cut into 8 to 10 slices. Dip in flour and brown 4 slices at a time in a skillet in oil (or bacon fat) reserving 1/2 of the salad oil for the second frying.

Make-Ahead Dinner Salad

Add the crispness of garden-fresh vegetables to a zesty lemon-flavored gelatin and chill in individual molds for make-ahead dinner salad. Season gelatin with a touch of instant minced onion, vinegar and dash Tabasco sauce. When partially thickened, stir in chopped celery, green pepper, shredded cabbage and carrot. Unmold salads on rings of Calavo avocado and top with a blend of mashed avocado and mayonnaise.

For Salad Fanciers

Salad fanciers often like to add about a quarter cup of crumbled Roquefort cheese to a cup of French dressing.

to assure you of the very best...
only Government Graded Beef

Your friendly Colonial Store sells only U.S. Department of Agriculture graded beef. Here's what this means to you. Prices for the same cut of beef at different food stores vary greatly... often as much as 25 to 30 cents. Generally these price differences are due to differences in quality. And the only way you can be sure of beef quality is to buy GOVERNMENT GRADED beef... beef graded according to rigid standards set by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for your protection.

When you buy your beef at Colonial you know exactly the quality and the value you're getting. So choose either U.S.D.A. CHOICE or U.S.D.A. GOOD and be sure... at your friendly Colonial Store!

It's Fun for All
With Fresh Fruit

Fun for the youngsters! Children delight in fancying up fresh fruit cups for the whole family by cutting melon balls with a French ball cutter and serving themselves a plate of their handiwork for afternoon snacks.

Sundae Topping
Over Vanilla

Youngsters will love this easy new sundae topping. Simply combine a can of caramel sundae sauce with chopped light or dark raisins and a little grated orange rind. Spoon over vanilla ice cream.

CANTALOUPE WEDGES AND COTTAGE CHEESE REFRESHES
A Low-Calorie Mid-Summer Luncheon Dish Is Perfect for the Ladies

Rosy Squares of Salad Have Cup of Cantaloupe

A cool cantaloupe and cottage cheese salad makes a refreshing summer luncheon. To serve it with a flair, arrange cantaloupe wedges like a crown around the edges of a shallow bowl, and fill the center with cottage cheese mixed with a few sliced fresh dates and a grating of orange rind.

Mint jelly whipped until smooth, and blended with plenty of lemon juice makes flavorful and colorful dressing. The wedges are easy to arrange this way. Spoon a little of the cottage cheese into the center of the bowl first to keep the wedges from skidding; then add the remainder of the cheese.

Help yourself to crisp lettuce from the underliner, then to cantaloupe wedges and cottage cheese, adding dressing to your taste. This delicious Regal Cantaloupe Salad makes a satisfying low-calorie luncheon dish.

Vine-ripened midsummer cantaloupes are rushed to you in refrigerated cars, so these fine melons have excellent flavor and beautiful deep golden flesh. Low in calories, high in vitamins, they're a midsummer treat everyone can enjoy often.

REGAL CANTALOUPE SALAD
8 fresh dates
1 pint cottage cheese
1 tsp. grated orange rind
1 large mid-summer cantaloupe
Salad greens
Mint dressing

MINT DRESSING
1/2 cup apple mint jelly
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
Pit and slice dates. Combine with cottage cheese and orange rind; mix lightly. Cut cantaloupe in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Cut off rind and cut melon into 8 thin wedges. Arrange upright around inside edge of small bowl, and fill center with cottage cheese mixture. Garnish with greens. Serve with mint dressing.

Pickled Beets Are Sweet And Sour

Just the right sweet-sour marinade for a can of beets!
Clam Chowder Pilot Crackers
Cold Sliced Ham Potato Salad
Pickled Beets Celery Hearts
Bread-and-butter Sandwiches
Fruit Beverage

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. whole cloves
1/2 tsp. whole allspice
1 stick cinnamon
1/16 tsp. garlic salt
Drain beets and cut into quarters; reserve beet juice. Into a 1-quart saucepan put the sugar, 1/4 cup reserved beet juice, vinegar, salt, cloves, allspice, cinnamon and garlic salt. Stir over low heat until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil; place quartered beets in a 1-pint jar; pour the hot liquid over them. Cover and refrigerate overnight.
